While the Republican party is preparing to inaugurate a President from Ohio, the Ohio city of Toledo is "preparing for the installation of a soup kitchen, where thousands of Toledo unemployed may be served." Yesterday at the Social Service Federation in Toledo 2,000 men gathered "without breakfast," asking work. Seventy-five were put to work by the city, the others went away, discouraged.

This is a situation that should interest the incoming administration more than the debt of Europe or any League of Nations proposition. Men without breakfast in the United States, if there are too many of them, will make those in office think about affairs at home and think SERIOUSLY.

One single word costs the United States $3,000,000 a year, according to statistics. It is the word "please," used constantly in telegraph messages. If "please" were left out of all telegrams three millions could be saved.

And if oil were left out of all automobiles, many times $3,000,000 could be saved for a short time. After that new automobiles would cost more than the oil. The word "please" is to business and other dealings among human beings what oil is to the automobile.

An old woman of eighty is taken to the Newark, N. J., poorhouse. The authorities are horrified later to discover in her trunk $2,000 in gold coin, each five-dollar coin separately wrapped, and $4,000 in bills.

Why horrified? Nobody knows what it meant to that poor old woman to know, every hour, that she had $6,000 always within reach.

The poor old lady pushed thrift too far when she went to the poorhouse, taking her $6,000 with her. But she enjoyed intense excitement collecting the money, wrapping it up. And she had a feeling of safety every time she thought about the money. When you are eighty years old you need a little excitement; you need, above all, SAFETY.

Sir Robert Horne tells London advertisers that Eve praising the apple and persuading Adam to bite, was the first advertiser.

What about the serpent subtly advertising the knowledge locked up in the apple, thus persuading Eve to pick it? And the earth itself, created with all its wonders in six days, what a marvelous permanent advertisement for the power that created it.

The first carefully prepared advertisement was the rainbow, announcing no more floods. Advertisers will notice that this advertisement was done in colors. The threatening storm that came before the flood was advertised with heavy black clouds. And to this day the strongest advertising is done with colored advertisements or big black type.

What will be, eventually, the biggest city on earth? Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, has now passed the 1,000,000 mark, the beginning of big cities in South America. You are told that forty years from now New York city will have more than 16,000,000 of population. What will be the limit? There must be a limit. Henry George points out in "Progress and Poverty" that if a dog's tail continued to grow as rapidly as a puppy's tail grows, the dog would soon have a tail several yards long. But nature takes care of that.

In early days of animal life the dinosaur grew gradually bigger and bigger until he was seventy feet long. He weighed as much as many elephants. There was nothing apparently to prevent his growing to be a mile long. But nature took care of that.

The wisdom of providence will take care of the size of cities. A city of 16,000,000 or 25,000,000 may come, but there will be an end. And the end of bigness may be reached sooner than we imagine, thanks to the flying machine. Men crowd into cities to be near their work.

The flying machine, when fully developed, will take the crowds away to better homes and cheap land on the hilltops. Then the city will stop growing and gradually crumble away. Great office buildings, covering several square miles, with landing places on the roof, will replace cities and slums.

A cable from Tokio says half of Japan's income will be spent on the army and navy this year. At the same time comes from the Minister of Guatemala, at Washton, the announcement that Guatemala will cut her standing army two-thirds. From 15,000 men, costing $75,000 a month, the army will be reduced to 5,000 men, costing $25,000 a month. The difference will be spent on public schools. Some of our profiteers would be interested to know how Guatemala keeps up an army of 15,000 men on $75,000 a month—$5 per man per month.

In Kansas City Frank Klein sells a thirteen-ounce loaf of bread for 5 cents. He says it costs 4.14 cents to produce. His sales have jumped from 40 to 600 loaves a day. If he knows how to manufacture he will find that the way to get rich is to make eight-tenths of a cent ten million times, instead of making 5 cents a few times. Real and permanent prosperity is based on giving money's worth.

PROMISES ACTION IN COURT AT ONCE

Attorney-General Replies to Tufts' Attack by Saying He Is Still After Fish Trust

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen replied today to the counter-attack made upon him yesterday by District Attorney Nathan A. Tufts of Middlesex, in which Allen and Special Assistant Attorney-General Henry F. Hrulburt were criticised for their alleged connection with the famous "Fish Trust" tria.

Mr. Allen led off by declaring that there had been and would be no let-up in the prosecution of fish cases.

He said he was doing all in his power to bring the cases of the seventeen fish men convicted in the Superior Court before the Supreme Court, and expected action soon.

And he declared that far from feeling it necessary to apologize for having named Hurlburt his special assistant in probing auto theft and stock swindling cases in Suffolk and Middlesex, ht was proud of it.

"Everybody knows Henry F. Hurlburt for the fighter he is" he added. "Everybody knows he will fight as hard to convict in the auto theft or stock swindling cases, where he is retained by the State, as he would fight for the defense of his clients in the fish matter."

"HURLBURT GOT $40,000."

Mr. Tufts' attack of yesterday was in answer to the attack of the Attorney-General and his special assistant, Mr. Hurlburt, upon Mr. Tufts and District-Attorney Pelletier for alleged laxity in prosecuting auto theft and stock swindling cases.

Tufts said, "The fish profiteers are not in prison.

"Hurlburt, now special assistant attorney-general, got $40,000 for de-

Mrs. Vanderbilt Has Dropped Sceptre

New York Society Leader Retires Because of H.C.L. and Her Diminishing Income

New York, Jan. 21.—After her many years as a leader in New York's most exclusive society, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt has put aside her social sceptre.

Diminution of her income through the distribution of the estate of her husband, the late William K. Vanderbilt, is given as a principal reason for her inability to continue her social activities on the scale she maintained for years. The high cost of living and immense taxes that deplete her income are given as other contributing causes for her retirement to a less expensive and less strenuous social life.

WILL NEVER RESUME.

It is predicted that Mrs. Vanderbilt will never renew her activities nor revive the lavish and elaborate entertainments which marked her leadership.

Substantiating the prediction that Mrs. Vanderbilt has retired as a social leader is the announcement that she has sold the mansion at Fifth avenue and Fifty-second street and the beautiful country home, "Stepping Stones," at Jericho, Long Island.

The Fifth avenue mansion is said to have been sold for $3,000,000 and "Stepping Stones" for $500,000. In place of these palaces Mrs. Vanderbilt has become owner of a modest house at No. 11 Suffolk place, a section of Avenue A near Fifty-seventh street and East River, where an exclusive social colony is established, through the purchase of homes by a few well-known families.

MANY BIG GIFTS.

Before his death last July 22 William K. Vanderbilt made a gift of $15,000,000 to his daughter, Consuelo, the Duchess of Marlborough, and one million each to her two children, the Marquis of Blandford and Lord Ivor Spencer-Churchill. Other private, public and charity bequests further reduced the estate.

No direct money bequest was made to the widow, but she received the Paris house and contents, a chateau in Normandy and two other valuable farms in France, in addition to provisions for her which her husband made before his death.

TOBACCO COSTS $90,000,000 MORE THAN LEARNING

FIFTH ARREST MADE IN FREIGHT CAR ROBBERIES

REVEALS DRUG PLOT AT DEER ISLAND

"Dope" Smuggled to Prisoners, O'Brien Announces; Pigs on Island Stolen Also

Drug peddlers have been detected in a plot to smuggle morphine into Deer Island and sell it to the prisoners there at $36 a "deck," Penal Institutions Commissioner O'Brien announced today.

He admitted evidence that already considerable morphine had been sold to the prisoners. Three inmates of the House of Correction have been discovered in possession of "dope." They admitted that they bought it from visitors, one a man and one a woman.

The prisoners were sentenced by the newly formed Mutual Welfare League of House of Correction Inmates to fourteen to twenty-one days in solitary.

The inmates are said to have confessed they injected the morphine by pricking their skins with safety pins and dropping the drug into the abrasion with eye-droppers such as are used to administer eye lotion.

Commissioner O'Brien also announced that the Mutual Welfare League had informed him that pigs were being stolen from the Deer Island piggery.

SAVED BY MEN THEY SOUGHT TO AID

Monomoy Point Guardsmen Have Narrow Escape When Freighter Goes Ashore

Chatham, Jan. 21.—Eight coast guardsmen of the life-saving station at Monomoy Point were pitched into the icy waters off Bearse Shoal early today when going to the rescue of the French steamship Bacchus, which was ashore on the shoal.

They lost their frail craft, but were saved by members of the crew of the freighter.

The Bacchus, in ballast from New York for Portland, was passing the shoal having come to landward of Stone Horse lightship, when suddenly the southwest gale seemed to pick her up and hurl her shoreward.

Those aboard felt a scraping and grinding as the ship went on the sand.

The plight of the Bacchus was visible to the coast guard patrol, and Captain R. F. Ellis at once set forth with his crew of eight men in the station boat to render any assistance possible. High combers broke over the small craft and buffeted her about considerably.

Despite this, good headway was made until they were alongside the Bacchus. Then came a giant wave which hurled their small boat away from the side of the Bacchus as the life crew was climbing aboard.

A wireless call was sent to the Charlestown Navy Yard with the word of the predicament of the life-savers. The cutter Acushnet was reached on her station down the bay and rushed to the scene.

The life savers were taken off the Bacchus as she floated off the shoal at high tide.

FREIGHT WRECK TIES UP B. & A. LINES TWO HOURS

Derailment of two cars on an east-bound freight train near the Ashland station of the Boston & Albany railroad at [illegible] o'clock today tied up both tracks several hours. No one was injured. As a result of the blockade six trains, both east and west-bound, were held up until the lines were cleared. Passengers from the west were held at Westboro, while those from Boston were unable to proceed beyond Ashland. The tieup affected several New York trains on the Boston & Albany line.

BOY IS BURNED IN FIRE IN DORCHESTER

Fire believed to have been caused by a child playing with matches did damage of about $50 today in the two-and-a-half-story wooden dwelling at No. 457 Quincy street, Dorchester, owned and occupied by Mrs. Delia C. Malloy. William L. Malloy, twelve-year-old son of Mrs. Malloy, was slightly burned in trying to extinguish flames on a window curtain.

MACHINE GUNS AND BOMBS USED

British Rush Troops and Police to Frustrate Sinn Feiners' Ambuscade

By International News Service.

London, Jan. 21.—A violent battle between Sinn Feiners and military policemen has just been fought in a suburb of Dublin, according to telegrams received this afternoon from the Irish capital.

In the battle rifles and bombs were used on both sides.

Sinn Feiners had prepared an ambuscade upon a bridge in the Drumcondra district to await a detachment of Black and Tans that were expected to enter the city.

The British authorities heard of the preparations and rushed both troops and policemen to the scene.

The fighting had started before the soldiers and policemen arrived. The relief force spread out and attacked the Sinn Feiners in the rear, the latter taking flight.

Six of the Sinn Feiners were cap-

Woman 'Rattles' Uses Perfume as Weapon

By International News Service.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—A handsome woman "Raffles," who lulls her victims to sleep with the fumes of an exotic perfume and robs them, is being sought in Chicago today as a result of the story told by Miss Ruth O'Shea, eighteen-year-old University student.

Miss O'Shea, according to her story, was drugged by the mysterious woman and robbed of $80.

Miss O'Shea was found unconscious two blocks from her home early yesterday. It was first thought she was the victim of an accident. Not until she recovered consciousness last night did the cause of her condition become known. According to the story told by Miss O'Shea, she was accosted by the woman on a street car while returning from a visit to her cousin, who is ill in a hospital.

After talking of various subjects the woman who appeared refined and was well dressed, brought up the subject of perfume, declaring she was passionately fond of rare scents.

When Miss O'Shea left the car the woman got off also, explaining that her home was two blocks away. Continuing the conversation about perfume the woman suggested that Miss O'Shea sniff the fragrance of her handkerchief. A second later, Miss O'Shea said, she felt her legs giving way and she lost consciousness. When found by passers-by Miss O'Shea was uninjured but her money and jewelry had been taken.

Communists had gained control of the municipal administration, raising the red flag over the Municipal Building.

A crowd of citizens attacked the City Hall and attempted to haul down the crimson banner.

A battle followed in which hand grenades were used by the Communist defenders of the building.

A hurried call was sent for soldiers and the city is now quiet and under military patrol.

Castellammare di Stabia is on the bay of Naples and contains a large shipyard. The population is about 37,000.

ACCUSERS DEFIED BY STEEL KING

Schwab, on Stand, Declares He's Willing to Have Searchlight Turned on Him

By International News Service.

New York, Jan. 21.—Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and former director-general of shipbuilding for the Emergency Fleet Corporation, appeared before the Walsh congressional investigating committee today and unqualifiedly denied that the Shipping Board has been charged $250,000 for his personal expenses during October, 1918.

This charge had been made under oath by Colonel E. B. Abadie, former comptroller-general of the Shipping Board.

IN DEFIANT MOOD.

When the Congressional Committee, which is investigating activities of the Shipping Board resumed its sessions, Schwab and Eugene R. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and Paul D. Cravath, an attorney for that corporation, were on hand.

Schwab declared that Colonel Abadie's charge was "absolutely, unmitigatedly and maliciously false."

"There was no charge for personal expenses of mine ever placed against the Shipping Board or Emergency Fleet Corporation," Schwab testified. "I defy anyone, furthermore, to show any vouchers for personal expenses on the books of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation."

TRIED TO STOP AUDIT.

Colonel Abadie had testified that owing to alleged irregularities in the accounts of shipbuilding firms holding "cost plus" government contracts he had desired to show up flagrant methods and to make "example," had obtained permission to have a public accounting firm go over the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company's books.

Later, he said, Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the Shipping Board, endeavored to stop the audit, and it was resumed only after Bernard M. Baruch had insisted that to

SCOTLAND YARD STARTS ROUNDUP OF SINN FEINERS IN LONDON

ONE HELD AS LEADER SENT TO TERRORIZE ENGLAND

tured. One of the wounded prisoners was reported dying.

SEVEN POLICEMEN SLAIN.

In contradiction to Premier Lloyd George's statement that the government now has murder in Ireland "by the throat," advices from Dublin up to noon reported seven policemen killed and four wounded in the last twenty-four hours. In two different districts men were reported to have been taken from their beds by Black and Tans and shot in the presence of their wives.

A constable was ambushed near Bloxham and shot to death.

Following the official reprisals in Cork, by which several houses were destroyed, soldiers and policemen were active through the city during the entire night, arresting twenty-three persons.

The arrests were the result of this discovery of arms and ammunition in the homes of Sinn Feiners, it was said.

Another official reprisal occurred at Charleville, where a house was burned. The military authorities claimed that shots had been fired from the house upon Black and Tans.

Fairs and meetings were forbidden, shops were ordered to close at 7:30 p. m. and all lights were ordered extinguished at 9 p. m.

At Maryboro a band of men wearing uniforms entered a house and shot a former soldier to death as he lay in bed. The victim was formerly a member of the guards, one of the crack units of the British army. The police made two arrests.

Sherman Crawford, deputy lieutenant and magistrate of Cork, was arrested today, says a dispatch from that city. The military authorities said that arms had been found secreted in Crawford's safe.

Scotland Yard officials express belief that they have broken up and scattered the militant organization of Sinn Fein sympathizers in London as the result of raids. While few arrests were made, much documentary evidence was seized.

ENVOY FROM ERIN.

Scotland Yard claimed to have proof that a special emissary had been sent by the leaders of the Irish Republican army to direct a campaign of arson and terrorism in London. But they believe that any efforts in that direction have been effectually frustrated.

From an authoritative source it was learned that a special order had been issued by the staff of the Irish Republican army dealing with plans for a campaign of violence in England. The allegation was made by police officials that they had connected up the Irish Self Determination League with this conspiracy, although there is no direct accusation against Arthur O'Brien, president of the league.

When the first alarm of Sinn Fein violence in England was spread the police took drastic precautions and it became very difficult for the Sinn Feiners to conscript agents in this city. It was then that the chiefs of the Irish republican army decided to send a special envoy from Ireland, according to Scotland Yard. The police believe that this envoy is already in custody. They say he is James Moran, a nineteen-year-old youth who was captured in a raid after the attempt to fire an oil warehouse in Wandsworth.

The police say they seized a document in Moran's handwriting reporting to Dublin on the detailed plans for the Wandsworth fire.

Moran and three companions were arraigned in Southwestern Police Court charged with shooting officers of the law with intent to kill. They were remanded without bail.

IRISH ATTACKS INCREASE.

The Daily Herald, official organ of the British labor party, in commenting upon the government's intensified coercion, pointed out that the chief result has been an increase in the number of Irish attacks. Eight were reported as having occurred Wednesday. In the attack at Nenagh the Republicans used machine guns, the bullets penetrating an armored motor car.

On Thursday, in addition to the fatal attack at Glenwood, an abortive effort was made to ambush a detachment of military police at Kilrush. The fifty men in the ambush party were scattered.

Many bridges were blown up in Cavan, Kells and Meath.

Hillaire Belloc, famous British publicist, in a letter to the Daily News, calls attention to the fact that the view is widely held in continental Europe that the persecution of the Irish may be due to anti-Catholic bias. Mr. Belloc says this view is a false one as regards the English. He declares the English have been unable to control the animosities of the Orangemen in Ulster province.

Husband's Value Set at Less Than Legs

Which is worth more—a leg or a husband?

Over in New York the other day a jury awarded a woman $45,000 for the loss of her leg and another gave a boy $42,500 for the loss of two legs.

Mrs. Jessie W. Gerry of Charlton, however, puts a more modest value upon a Massachusetts husband, and has brought suit againe the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company, asking only $42,000 for the life of her husband, who was run down and killed by one of the company's cars last October.

And furthermore, just to emphasize the difference in the market value of husbands and legs, this is one of the largest suits for damages ever filed against the Worcester corporation.

80 Prisoners Shot in Cold Blood, Sinn Fein Charges

Dublin, Jan. 21.—Mayor Loughry of Kilkenny, who was released after a month in jail without any charges being preferred against him, said in an interview:

"Three days after my arrest I was blindfolded and told that I was being taken for a short drive with the police, who told me that in the event of their being ambushed they had instructions to shoot me. Other prisoners were taken out in turn every time that the police went out on patrol."

The Sinn Feiners charge that more than eighty prisoners were shot in cold blood and declare that Dublin Castle's explanation that the men were shot while attempting to escape is false.

BROOKLINE POST ACTS TONIGHT ON DANA'S CASE

Further action on the stand taken by Payson Dana, civil service commissioner, against further preference to veterans of the World War, will be taken at the regular meeting of Brookline Post, No. 11, American Legion, tonight. It is reported a number of the members of the post are indignant over the finding of the executive committee reported last week, to the effect that Dana, who is a member of the post, was speaking as a public official and citizen and not as a member of the legion, when he made the statement that has aroused so much comment.

fending the fish men. They were prosecuted by Allen. Allen won the high office he now holds by a political stump appeal on the issue of this prosecution. And yet he is scarcely in office before he leagues wiht counsel for the fish men and names him a special assistant attorney-general."

Attorney-General Allen today declared that to start with he did not prosecute the fish cases, but as a member of the Legislature introduced the order to probe the "trust."

It was on the strength of his minority report that the evidence of the existence of a trust was submitted to the then Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill. From that time his connection with the case, Allen said, was only that of any other citizen.

His statement follows:

"I had nothing to do with the prosecution of the Fish Trust cases in the criminal court. I attended none of the trials and was not familiar with the actual details of these trials.

"My work was done when I had put through the Legislature the order referring the evidence of the existence of a trust to the Attorney-General, Mr. Attwill, former Assistant Attorney-General Mulcahy and former District Attorney Abraham C. Webber of Suffolk, who prosecuted.

"Seventeen convictions were secured. The case was taken to the Supreme Court on exceptions by Mr. Hurlburt, counsel for the defendants.

"Mr. Wyman, then Attorney-General, named Mr. Attwill and Mr. Webber to represent the State in the trial of these cases in the Supreme Court. If Mr. Wyman had not done it, I would have done so.

"Mr. Attwill and Mr. Webber are still in charge of these cases. They are representing this office in the prosecution.

"The bill of exceptions taken by Mr. Hurlburt in defence of the fish men was the longest in the history of the Commonwealth. I am informed there were over 1,000 exceptions taken and the expense of printing these exceptions alone will probably reach $5,000.

"I have continued Mr. Attwill and Mr. Webber in charge of these cases, to represent the State. I have cooperated with them whenever necessary and I have suggested that everything possible be done to bring the cases to trial.

"In fact I have at times asked Mr. Hurlburt to halt in his probe of auto cases in order that the prosecution of the first cases might not be delayed.

"There will be no let-up in the prosecution of the fish cases."

Mr. Allen [illegible] that he had been in telephone conference with Mr. Wyman and Mr. Attwill and expected to have a personal conference on the fish cases with the former today.

The so-called "Fish Trust" cases, which now becomes an issue in the Allen-Pelletier-Tufts feud and struggle for authority, grew out of a resolution introduced by Mr. Allen himself.

Attorney-General Attwill prosecuted them. When he was named to the chairmanship of the Department of Public Utilities and Henry A. Wyman became Attorney-General the latter carried on the matter. Allen, elected Attorney-General a year ago, inherited the cases he himself started.

The only other development in the feud today was that Legislators were conferring on Attorney-General Allen's request that certain powers be taken from districy attorneys and vested in the courts or his own office.

abandon the audit would bring the whole Shipping Board into disrepute.

Colonel Abadie asserted it was finally decided to have two audits, results of which did not agree, and that he was forced to resign for his efforts to stop leaks in the Shipping Board's purse from which millions of dollars, he testified, illegally found their way into the pockets of ship builders.

"Nothing in connection with my personal expenses ever was charged against the government," said Schwab. "I was particularly careful to see that there never would be a possibility of an insinuation of this kind made against me."

WILL TELL ANYTHING.

He said he would gladly appear at any time to tell anything he might know "in connection with the operation of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation."

Grace, who preceded Schwab on the stand, endeavored to refute Colonel Abadie's accusations that the government had been mulcted of upwards of $100,000,000 in the construction of vessels during the war by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation.

Schwab asserted that when he was asked by President Wilson to head the Emergency Fleet Corporation he wrote back pointing out his identification with steel and shipbuilding interests, but that the President nevertheless "prevailed upon me to accept the position and I did so" on the understanding there was to be no compensation.

BEN WELCH, STRICKEN BLIND, WILL PLAY ON

Washington, Jan. 21.—Although stricken stone blind, "Ben" Welch, famous as a Jewish comedian, will continue playing his part in "Jimmie," a musical comedy, in which he is starring with Frances White, he declared today.

Ben Welch.

Welch has been totally blind for a week, but as he has kept on playing every night, few persons knew of his affliction. Last Sunday he underwent an operation, but Dr. Wilmer, regarded as a leading optical specialist, who performed the operation, told him there is no hope, as the optic nerves are dead.

Mrs. Welch is accompanying her husband and caring for him off the stage. While playing his part, Welch shows no hint of his blindness.

KENYON ASKS $15,000 FROM TETLOW ESTATE FOR WIFE'S LOVE

HAPPINESS GONE, SAYS HUSBAND

Charges Slain Physician Deprived Him of Affections and Society of His Wife

New London, Ct., Jan. 21.—Damages of $15,000 for the loss of his wife's affections and society are asked in a suit filed today in New London County Superior Court by Alvin S. Kenyon against Lewis Tetlow, brother and administrator of the estate of Dr. Herbert Tetlow, for whose death Mrs. Kenyon, is now serving a fifteen-year term in the State Prison at Wethersfield.

The case, attorneys said, was a novel one in legal proceedings, and its trial will be followed almost as closely as the famous murder trial at Norwich last October in which Mrs. Kenyon was found guilty of manslaughter.

Judge Herbert W. Rathbun of Westerly, who defended the woman, is also counsel for Mr. Kenyon in the civil action.

The suit followed a claim for a like amount filed against the estate of Dr. Tetlow last month and which was rejected by the administrator. The case will probably be heard in the February term of court.

The intimacy of his wife and Dr. Tetlow began about the first day of March, 1912, Kenyon charges in his petition.

"INTELLECTUAL COMPANIONSHIP."

The physician was found dead in his apartment a few doors from the Kenyon home on the Connecticut side of Westerly on June 11, 1920. Mrs. Kenyon was the only other person there.

In the narration of her life story, which was characterized by many dramatic incidents and the self-developed philosophy of the woman interspersed in the telling, she stated that she found an "intellectual companionship long denied" in the doctor.

She had resolved, however, she declared, that their illicit relations must cease and had asked him to move from Westerly. When he refused, she said, she determined upon death for herself as the only way out of the unhappy triangle.

She went to Tetlow's apartment June 11, she testified, carrying a revolver with which she intended to kill herself in the room where they "had spent so many happy hours." The doctor attempted to wrest the weapon from her, she said, and during the struggle it was discharged.

The prosecution claimed Mrs. Kenyon went to the doctor's apartment armed, to protest against his waning attentions to her.

"HAPPINESS DESTROYED."

Judge Hinman, who heard the case, in his charge to the jury stated that if they found that Mrs. Kenyon was in the act of ending her own life when Dr. Tetlow interfered she was engaged in an unlawful act and was guilty of manslaughter.

There are four children, all boys, in the Kenyon family. One, twenty-one, and another, seventeen, are sons of Mrs. Kenyon by her first marriage to a man named Church. Kenyon is the father of two others, one, thirteen, and the other an infant, who had his first birthday a few days after his mother was sent to prison.

"The plaintiff was and is the husband of Mabel Church Kenyon, formerly of Pawcatuck, Ct., and now of Wethersfield, Ct.," said the husband petition, "and in 1912 and for many years previous thereto he had been living happily with his said wife at Pawcatuck, Ct., as her husband.

"About the year 1912, and on divers days and times, from said date up to June 11, 1920, the said Herbert Tetlow, by his acts, blandishments and seductions alienated the love and affection of the plaintiff's wife, and destroyed his happiness and the happiness of his home, and continued so to do up to said June 11, 1920, when said Herbert Tetlow died.

"The plaintiff has thereby suffered great pain of body and great distress of mind, and has lost the love and affection and society of his wife, and his own happiness, and has been neglected and abandoned by his said wife in consequence of the wrongs and injuries of the said Herbert Tetlow, and said abandonment still continues."

Sea of Umbrellas Clouds Wellesley Campus

Rain, rain, stay away,
Come again some other day,
Little freshies want to play.

But whoever heard of wanting the rain to stay away so umbrellas could be carried? Nevertheless the rain stayed away and the Wellesley freshmen carried their beautiful green tissue paper parasols in triumph to chapel and all about the campus.

It all happened because the sophomores thought they would stump the freshmen and issued a challenge that the freshmen should carry umbrellas all day long on the campus while the sun shone.

They must not tread any part of the green without umbrellas. The freshmen did the trick so well that the sophomores are heartily sick of the sight of an umbrella.

Umbrellas in droves obstructed the views of sophomores at every angle. Down on the lake the freshmen had the advantage of the sophs and skimmed over the ice on their skates with the umbrellas as sails.

Not only that but the juniors exclaimed "What clever freshmen and what pretty and clever umbrellas." And the signs on some of the "bumbleshoots" read: "And everywhere the freshies went, the sophs were sure to go."

And the sophs didn't like that because they had to follow to see that the freshmen stuck to it. But in the end the freshmen had to admit that the sophomores sorely vexed them and they wished they could shut their umbrellas when the wind blew and nearly tore them insides out while the sophs stood by in perfect bliss and comfort.

NEARING DEATH, SHE BEGS JILT TO RETURN

Woman Shoots Herself for Love of Married Brooklyn Man Who Left Her

New York, Jan. 21.—In Bushwick Hospital, Brooklyn, Kathryn Maloney Nortman lies near death.

With a self-inflicted bullet wound in her breast the girl is trying to claim Robert Nachman, who is under arrest at the Ralph avenue station.

In their home, at No. 1681 Pitkin avenue, Nachman's wife and two children are waiting for him to return.

In Pittston, Pa., are the husband and five-year-old son of Mrs. Nortman, still unaware that she is hovering between life and death.

Mrs. Nortman, twenty-four, pretty, with chestnut hair and hazel eyes, is said to be a daughter of former Mayor Thomas Maloney of Pittston.

She shot herself Wednesday night, in a rooming house at No. 377 Bainbridge street, Brooklyn, where she was living with Nachman. She calls for Nachman piteously.

The story of the strange triangle was told today by Nachman's wife. She said:

"We have been married twenty-two years. We were happy until other women began to come into his life two years ago. I was never ignorant of his meeting Mrs. Nortman. I pleaded with my husband to give her up. But I kept out of court. I wanted to shield the children.

"Months ago my husband tired of his life with Mrs. Nortman. He wanted to return to me and the children.

"I know my husband made every effort to shake her off, but she went so far as to threaten him. She offered to buy him a home, work for him and give him money so he could enjoy life.

"He got so nervous I thought he was going to have a breakdown. I don't want to make it appear that my husband is blameless, but this woman had a strange influence over him."

Nachman was arraigned yesterday on a charge of violating the Sullivan law. Magistrate Brown held him in $1,000 bail.

FAMOUS WOMAN FLIER TO WED DRUGGIST

Mlle. Jane Herveux.

New York, Jan. 21.—"Flying is not one-half so dangerous as marriage, but I like adventure and will take a chance," said Mlle. Jane Herveux, foremost woman aviator in the world, whose engagement to Filipino C. Catalano has just been announced.

Mlle. Herveux, who is thirty years old, was the first woman to secure an aviation pilot's license. She tried to enlist in the French army as a flier during the war, but was rejected on account of her sex.

Catalano is a twenty-three-year-old druggist. He and Mlle. Herveux have been acquainted less than three weeks.

Washington, Jan. 21.—The two airplanes carrying Mrs. H. H. Wheeler of Lincoln, delegate from the Nebraska electoral college, and Mrs. Draper Smith of Omaha, alternate, both grandmothers, to Washington to deliver the Nebraska vote for Harding and Coolidge, were expected here late today, according to Lieutenant Commander Lee Hammond, in charge of the flight.

The two airplanes flew from Omaha to Lincoln yesterday morning and there the official start of the trip was made at 12:30 p. m., when Mrs. Wheeler left for Omaha, where Mrs. Smith waited to enter her airplane.

The two women will take luncheon in Chicago early today while the planes are tuned up and refueled. In the afternoon they will depart via Lake Shore route to Cleveland, thence to Pittsburgh and finally Washington. Mrs. Wheeler is fifty-five years old, and Mrs. Smith is sixty-six.

DE CLAMECY TO BE TRIED FIRST IN NEW YORK

Plea That He Be Permitted to See Family In Boston Fails to Win

Philippe De Clamecy, adventurer, confidence man and Lothario, will not return to Massachusetts for some time, although his presence is earnestly desired by officials here.

De Clamecy, who has been entertained socially and officially by Suffolk County authorities, must stand trial in New York for forgery, despite his plea that he be allowed to see a wife and child in Boston, to whom he claimed to be devoted.

Assistant District Attorney Joab H. Banton of New York pointed out that the self-styled financier-jurist-general had been equally devoted to other wives, several in number. Furthermore, he declared that according to the law an offender arrested in New York State should be tried for his offence there before being surrendered to another State.

De Clamecy, who was feted in this city some years ago, and later sent to the State Prison, is wanted here for violating his parole.

Detective William M. Robinson was sent to New York to bring him back.

De Clamecy, convicted of defrauding the Hotel Touraine through forged checks, was released on parole in 1917 because of his supposed proficiency in aeronautics. He went to Massachusetts Institute of Technology as an instructor, but disappeared after attempting to sell stolen instruments.

10,000 ARE OUT ON BUILDING STRIKE

Secretary Johnson Declares 100 Per Cent. of Association Jobs "Cleaned"

More than 10,000 members of the Building Trades' Council are on strike and "holding fast to the principles enunciated by their unions," according to a statement issued today by General Secretary E. A. Johnson at headquarters, No. 186 Harrison avenue, South End.

"All jobs of the Employers' Association were cleaned 100 per cent. by the workmen reporting at union headquarters," said Johnson. "One of the difficulties of the labor leaders is the work of persuading the men to remain at work for contractors who are willing to pay the $1 per hour, as the men feel that the grievance of one is the grievance of all. Regardless of the fact that $1 per hour has been offered, the men insist on striking in sympathy with their fellow workers, who struck jobs of the Employers' Association."

STRIKERS GATHER.

Several hundred strikers gathered in front of the Harrison avenue headquarters today. Others filled the rooms of the subordinate branches of the Building Trades' Council, where business agents of different locals received reports from the men.

The Building Trades' Council's views on the situation were explained today by Johnson, who said:

"Statements have been made by the Employers' Association that demand an answer, in order that the public may know the true conditions as they exist between the Employers' Association and the Building Trades' Council.

"It has been stated that the council had demanded a universal five-day working week for all trades, when the true facts are that five trades affiliated with the council have enjoyed the five-day week for some years, and the rest of the trades were satisfied with the five and one-half day week, and such was inserted in the agreements presented by the council and agreed to by the employers at the meeting of December 3, 1920.

DISCRIMINATION IN TRADES.

"Another question discussed and of importance to the council was the statement of the secretary of the Employers Association that certain trades affiliated with the council would not be allowed to become signators to the agreement, owing to the employers of these eight crafts not being members of the Employers' Association. This was objected to by the labor committee, on the grounds that labor was not going to be placed in the position of forcing employers of trades affiliated with the council into a position where they could not deal with the council, unless they were members of the Employers' Association.

The employers gave way in this matter at meeting of December 16, 1920, but the fact must be noted that in the last proposition submitted by the employers, which also embodies reduction in wages, this same discrimination is again inserted.

"In answer to the Building Trades Employers' Association that they offered to continue the 1920 agreement at $1 per hour the council desires to state that when the employers made this offer the provisos were also stated that the rate of overtime would be time and a half, and that men would be forced to leave the city at 7 a. m. and return at 6 p. m., which would necessitate the men working and traveling ten and twelve hours a day.

EXTENSION OF AGREEMENT.

"On two occasions the employers haggled on propositions submitted by the council which called for the extension of the 1920 agreement, and the last constructive proposition was submitted by the council to the employers at meeting of January 10, which was that the 1920 agreement be continued at the $1 an hour rate of wage. Up to date no answer has been given to the council by the employers to this proposition.

"The cause of the present situation in the building industry is the failure of the employers' association to continue friendly negotiations for continuance of 1920 agreement and of the fact that notifications were posted on jobs stating that there would be a reduction in wages and through the stubborness of members of the employers' association who had no large amount of work and were in a position to tie up without any large financial loss."

Hub Soldiers' Heads Smaller, Brainier

Why should Western soldiers have bigger heads than those of Eastern soldiers?

That they have is disclosed by Brig.-Gen. Amos A. Fries, in charge of supplying the army with new type gas masks.

Soldiers in and around Boston have heads considerably smaller than those stationed in Western forts and cantonments. Southerners also have small heads.

Boston soldiers are taking what consolation they can from the statements of scientists who say that the shape of the head, not the size, indicates brain power.

HUSBAND SUES BROKER FOR $250,000

New York Doctor Charges Alienation of Affections and a "Bigamous" Marriage

New York, Jan. 21.—William J. Ehrich, head of the banking firm of Ehrich & Co., member of the stock exchange, is facing today a $250,000 suit for alienation of affections brought by Dr. John Miller of No. 158 East Thirty-eighth street.

Dr. Miller charges that after a "fraudulent" divorce, his wife and Ehrich contracted a "bigamous" marriage.

At the same time Dr. Miller is suing for a divorce from Mrs. Katherine Degnan Miller, who, he alleges, is living with Ehrich at No. 141 West Seventy-fourth street, after their "bigamous" marriage on December 8.

The two suits reveal the fact that Mrs. Miller went to Ely, Nev., last Summer, and after establishing a residence there she sued for a divorce. She alleges that she obtained a decree September 9.

MUST SEARCH PRISONERS IN FULL VIEW

New Police Order Issued Following Complaints of Thefts in Station Houses

Owing to complaints that men arrested for intoxication had not had all their property returned following their release Police Commissioner Curtis has issued an order that commanding officers of all stations, or officers temporarily in charge of stations must either make the search of prisoners himself or be in position to see it made. The order will result in station-house desks being cut down so that the officer in charge can see the man being searched.

Belts and knives are taken away to prevent the prisoner doing himself any harm. It is provided that except in the case of persons arrested charged with larceny all of their property shall be returned them on release.

Reports have been received that prisoners have been robbed of money. Complaints have been made to division commanders and subsequently to police headquarters.

Two $12,000 a Year Jobs Go A-Begging

Washington, Jan. 21.—Wanted: Two men at $12,000 a year each for four years.

Applicants can fit into soft berths vacant on the directorate of the War Finance Corporation.

Secretary o fthe Treasury Houston said today, after a long search:

"The jobs are attractive, but available men can't be found."

A half dozen eligibles already have been presented to the President by Secretary Houston, but apparently none of them wants the jobs.

Both Democrats and Republicans have declined them.

Big financiers, tendered the places, merely laugh at the salary attached.

The President, it is said, will fill the places as soon as Secretary Houston can find "availables."

PEGGY MARSH TO RESUME STAGE CAREER

Former Chelsea Girl, Recovering From Illness, Tells About Her Romance

New York, Jan. 21.—The sun had long since passed on. But a perennial sun seemed to be shining into room [illegible] of Miss Alston's "House for Private Patients," at No. 26 West Sixty-first street.

Despite the austere hospital chamber, the brightness of the world appeared to centre about a beautiful young woman, clad in the flimsiest of pink negligee, who half-reclined upon her bed. After she had smiled a welcome Peggy Marsh said:

"I am so happy. I want to share my feelings with the whole world! This morning the New York American told of my marriage to Alfred L. Johnson, my 'Buster,' the sweetest boy on earth! There isn't much more to tell.

"As soon as the learned medical men release me from this room" (Peggy's eyes wandered about her bower of roses) "I am going to join my two boys—'Buster' and my four-year-old kiddie, 'Tony.' After that? Oh, I frankly don't know.

"I've had considerable stage experience, you know, and some time ago I signed a contract with Al Woods to play second lead (supporting Hazel Dawn) in a new Avery-Hopwood farce called 'Up in the Haymow.'

"I intend eventually to make my home in England. My dearest friends are there. I notice the papers stated that the Field estate is to settle my claims against the property of my boy's father, Henry Field, 2d.

"Negotiations have been going on for some time between my attorney, Daniel A. [illegible], of No. 71 Broadway, and Stanchfield & Levy, New York representatives of the Marshall Field estate.

"No definite conclusion have been reached, although I believe the other side concedes the justice of my claim that Mr. Field's son and mine should be taken care of. In fact, I was taken ill a week ago Wednesday in the office of Stanchfield & Levy. Funny, isn't it?

"Our romance? Oh, you know how it is when you meet the real ONE and ONLY.

"When we were introduced at luncheon in the Ritz, I just felt something was going to happen. That meeting gave the romance a running start. You know the rest."

ROXBURY BOY DIES AFTER HITTING AUTO

William McIver, twelve years old, of No. 84 Harvard avenue, Roxbury died at his home following an accident when he ran from the sidewalk and struck his head against the side of an auto truck while playing on Blue Hill avenue near Woodcliff street.

Lafayette Robey of No. 427 Columbus avenue, driver of the truck, picked the boy up after the accident and removed him to a nearby physician, who sent him home after failing to find any injuries. He died several hours after. An autopsy will be performed to ascertain the cause of death.

O'CALLAGHAN CAN REMAIN 30 DAYS

Cork Mayor May Then Choose His Own Ship Home, Labor Officials Declare

Washington, Jan. 21.—Lord Mayor Donal O'Callaghan of Cork will not be required to leave the country for thirty days, and then only on a vessel of his own choosing.

Such is the opinion of Department of Labor officials who examined the decision reached by the State and Labor Departments in the case.

Although the agreement specifies that Mayor O'Callaghan must reship on a foreign vessel "at the earliest possible moment," this is construed by Labor Department officials as not requiring any but the regular routine of reshipment for alien seamen.

Thirty days are granted in nearly every case to such aliens without passports, it is stated, and the department sees no reason why an exception should be made in the case of the Lord Mayor.

MINE OWNERS BLAMED FOR HIGH COAL

Anthracite Sells at Source at $12 to $14 a Ton, Says U. S. Prosecutor

Washington, Jan. 21.—Responsibility for excessive anthracite coal prices was laid at the door of the coal operators by Armin W. Riley, special Assistant Attorney-General before the Senate Manufacturers' Committee considering the Calder bill to regulate the coal industry.

"We found that hard coal at the mines is selling at from $12 to $14 per ton," Riley said. "It is being sold by retailers at from $20 to $25 per ton. They purchase it at the terminals at about $18 per ton."

"What is the fair profit for the retailer?" Senator La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin, chairman of the committee, asked.

"Overhead delivery to homes and profits should add from $1.50 to $2.50 a ton to the wholesale price," Riley declared.

A squad of heavily armed detectives and postal inspectors surprised two men in a house in West Adams street. Four more suspects, a man and three women, whose names are withheld, were later taken in another raid.

BACK BAY LAD WOULD ADOPT IRISH WAIF

Francis McAuliffe Sends His $10 Savings to Help Orphaned Riley Boy

Francis McAuliffe.

He's only seven, is Francis McAuliffe, of No. 17 Belvidere street, Back Bay, and he can't fight for Ireland, where his mother was born, but he's doing his bit for "that most distressful country" just the same.

When his mother told him of the outrages of the Black and Tans, of the suffering of little Irish boys and girls, under the tyranny of Great Britain Francis said nothing, just sat and listened and thought.

By and by the result of his thoughts came to the surface and he asked his mother's permission to "adopt" one of the four-year-old victims of British cruelty, an orphan boy, son of a widowed mother with two other children to care for.

He had his plan all thought out too. In his bank, filled with dimes and nickels and pennies, there is $10, all saved for a pet project of his own.

"I want to send that money to that boy," he said, "the boy whose father was killed by the Black and Tans, and whose mother is so poor. Then I want to 'dopt him for my own son, and take care of him always."

So today Mrs. McAuliffe is going to mail the $10 to Ireland with the following letter, written by seven-year-old Francis to mother of the four-year-old son he has 'dopted:

"Dear Mrs. Riley: I am just a little boy, only seven years old, and my mother has been telling me of the cruelties inflicted upon Irish children by the English army. I am sorry, awful sorry, that I can't go over there and fight, but I have saved up $10, and I am going to send that to you for your four-year-old boy.

"I want him to write to me and send me his picture, so that I can go right on writing to him all the time.

"His name was given to me by my mother, who heard of him through one of her friends.

"Yours truly,
"FRANCIS McAULIFFE."

ARMY OF 150,000 WOULD BE USELESS, SAYS BAKER

Washington, Jan. 21. — Reduction of the Unites States army to a force of 150,000, which it is reported will be recommended, through the military appropriation bill, would make the army impotent, Secretary of War Baker said today. Such reductions in the strength of the army would make it impossible to train troops by divisions, the Secretary said.

HUNTING FOR WHISKEY SMUGGLERS IN DETROIT

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 21. — Several men, believed to be associated with a ring of smugglers which is bringing whiskey from Cuba into the United States, are being sought in Detroit today by Federal agents. The ring, according to the officers, has unlimited finances and has shipped hundreds of thousands of quarts of booze into this country during the last year.

DRINK EASY TO GET, UPLIFT BODY FINDS

Several Score of Families Made Again Unhappy by Ability to Buy Alcohol

They were all good and happy, till two months ago. Then they began to slip. Alcohol, in a dry era, is altogether responsible for the back sliding of several score of families who are the wards of the Family Welfare Society of Boston, according to that society's latest report.

"Drink, these last two months, apparently, has not been hard to obtain, particularly in some sections of Boston," says Stockton Raymond, executive secretary of the Family Welfare Society. "Accordingly our society, sorry to see families—with whom it had worked till they were on their feet—slip back, investigated the causes of the increased intoxication.

"We found that Prohibition Enforcement Officer William J. McCarthy was doing a splendid job. We found that the police were most certainly doing their share in enforcement. But we discovered that the weakness was that the State police did not have the same authority under the Volstead act to enforce that the federal officers had. There, apparently, was the dilemma.

"We found that Massachusetts was one of the few States remaining where the State Legislature had not given powers to the police to act, in enforcement, as the federal officers are empowered to act.

"Now, our work with families has shown such improvement since prohibition went into effect that we must not lose it. For instance, in one district, the peninsular district of Boston, we found that prohibition had not meant the taking of drugs, as had been foretold. There was no increase in desertions, caused by the man, exiled from the saloon, having to spend more of his time in a rather cheerless home. The children were very much better dressed in forty-six families which we worked with intensively.

"And the wives suffered less from brutal husbands. There were touching instances, replete with human nature, which set off these facts. For example, with the wives. One woman boasted to our worker that since prohibition her husband had not 'laid a hand on her once.' Another proudly told that her husband brought up the coal and made the fire for the first time in their married life.

"The care of children has also improved. In one schoolroom all of the twenty-four children had rubbers, a condition never happening during the wet days. Now all these signs are worthy signs. One thing might have been regretted a bit—that was that the increased income coming to the families, through savings from drink, had not, apparently, as yet, made much improvement in the appearance of the homes.

"Of course the friends of prohibition raised many hopes in regard to the effect of the law on home conditions, most of which have not yet been realized. There is little difference, as yet, in home furnishings. Few graphophones, pianos or automobiles have been acquired.

"There has been the desire to buy new household furnishings, but because of the high cost of these things, during the past year, it has seemed out of the question to buy them on a laborer's wage. Possibly, if prices fall, such a result of prohibition will become evident, and the houses will be more attractively furnished."

SWAMP HUNTED FOR MISSING WOMAN

Aged Mansfield Woman Believed to Have Perished During Cold Spell

Mansfield, Jan. 21.—More than 400 searchers, led by the police and firemen of Mansfield, today sought Miss Maria Brintell, sixty-five years old, who is believed to have wandered away from her home and to have died in the Bungay swamp, half a mile away.

Miss Brintell, who has lived alone in her little cottage on South street, on the outskirts of Mansfield, for many years, was last seen Sunday evening, when she visited the house of her neighbor, Harry Briggs, and asked him to call the police, as two men had been hanging about her house that afternoon, and she was frightened.

At the time, she was wearing a thin wrapper of cotton and a scanty sweater, and was without a hat. Briggs called the police, but before they arrived Miss Brintell left his house and started home. She has not been seen since.

As she has had a reputation for being eccentric and objecting to visitors, no one bothered about her for several days, but her continued absence finally alarmed Briggs and other neighbors and the search was started.

GRAHAM STILL OWES $6,548 TO VERMONT

Governor Clement, at the time of the pardon, said that the money had been refunded. The announcement has created a sensation.

Hub Boat to Try for Fishermen's Cup

Model of the Mayflower, designed by W. Starling Burgess and to be built with Boston capital at Essex, as a contended for the International Fishermen's championship cup. She will have her tryout at Plymouth or Provincetown in August. A challenge will shorty be issued by her owners to the owners of the Rose Dorothea, a Provincetown vessel, which won the Lipton cup in the fishermen's races in 1906.

Boston will have a contender for the international fishing boat championship this year.

Within a few days work will start on the Mayflower, the name of the challenger, at the Tarr and James shipyards at Essex. Governor Channing H. Cox is scheduled to drive the first bolt at the laying of the keel, which is expected to take place within a week or ten days. The schooner will be completed in May, according to present plans.

Preliminary estimates fix the cost as approximately $45,000. The designer is W. Starling Burgess of Providence, son of Edward Burgess, who made valuable improvements on fishing boat designs. She measures 139 feet overall, with a 105-foot water line and a twenty-five-foot beam.

DARTMOUTH STUDENTS OVERSUBSCRIBE FUND

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 21.—Instead of reaching only the minimum of $16,000 set for them by Palaeopitus in the recent undergraduate campaign for funds for the Dartmouth Memorial athletic field, Dartmouth students have almost doubled that amount. They probably will take eight shares, each being worth $4,000.

HIGH PRICES KILL "DRINK MORE MILK" CAMPAIGN

INDIANA "PONZI" PROMISED 75 P.C. MONTHLY

Alpha Holiday Cleaned Up Not Less Than $200,000, Is Charge

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 21.—Promises said to rival those of Ponzi, of get-rich-quick fame, went a-glimmering today when Alpha Holiday of Muncie was bound over to the Federal Grand Jury for investigation of an alleged gigantic investment fraud in which it is estimated he obtained not less than $200,000 from some 1,200 Delaware County customers on the claim of profits of 50 to 75 per cent. a month.

The activities of the Muncie "broker" who, according to those who gave him money, represented himself merely as a "very clever buyer and seller of stocks and securities," antedated those of Ponzi by several months.

PASSION PLAY "CHRIST" DESTITUTE SINCE WAR

New York, Jan. 21.—The European Relief Council of which Herbert Hoover is the head, recently provided Anton Lang, the "Christ" of the Oberammergau Passion Play, with food and clothing of which he was badly in need, it became known here today. The message furnishes the first definite word that Lang has survived the war. News dispatches early in the war carried the information that Lang had been conscripted in the German army.

Boy Carries Dynamite to Dinner Table

Several young boys tramping through the woods in the Rial section of Beverly found a quantity of dynamite weighing more than sixty pounds thought to have been left there by contractors recently employed to blast in that district.

The youngsters split their spoils and when one of the boys brought his share to the table his father called Chief Robert H. Grant of the Beverly Fire Department who made the rounds to the homes of the boys and collected the find.

The authorities have placed the dynamite in a magazine and are now searching for the careless contractor.

300 BUILDING WORKERS STRIKE AT ANDOVER

Andover, Jan. 21.—More than 300 men employed in construction work at Shawsheen Village, this town, are affected by the general cessation of building activities occasioned by the cut in wages of 10 per cent. All union men who went to their work quit after reading the 10 per cent. cut announcement. The contractors here are acting in conformity with the policy laid down by the Master Builders' Association of Boston. About fifty men were engaged on the Shawsheen garage and were in the employ of the Turner Construction Company. Men at work for the American Woolen Company and the Charles S. Patten Company make up the greater number of the striking tradesmen.

NEW ARRESTS IN WORCESTER FIRES

Grand Jury Probers to Act When Witnesses End Testimony Today

Worcester, Jan. 21.—An indictment and an arrest in connection with the million dollar fires here are expected today when the Worcester County Grand Jury completes its hearing of State and city officials investigating the conflagrations.

Witnesses to testify at today's hearing were Deputy Fire Marshall McCarthy, State Officer Molt, Sergeants Anderson and Kendrick of the city police and several policemen.

While William N. Taylor, the fifty-nine-year-old watchman, remained under observation at the City Hospital, Oscar Willgarotte, proprietor of the Will & Company store, No. 336 Main street, where, the police believe, the three separate fires were set, was grilled by the investigators. His son, David, was also questioned.

Some person with a key to the store set the fires, according to the police. Charred papers in one of the fires were taken for examination. They were said to contain accounts of the store, in which there was a closing-out sale.

Cables are being attached to the seventh story of the Knowles building to pull the wall back into the ruins and relieve the block on the street.

The Worcester directory officials will be forced to retake their census of the city because of their records made recently being entirely destroyed, it was learned today.

"Pencil" Patient Improves

Two-year-old Theodore P. Boisseau of Lynn and diagram showing how a pencil was imbedded in his cheek for three months.

Theodore Boisseau, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boisseau of No. 43 Waverley street, Lynn, from whose upper jaw a piece of lead pencil three and one-half inches long was removed, is rapidly recovering from the effects of the operation, one of the most unusual ever performed in the State.

When an X-ray was taken of the boy's face it was believed that a broken bone was the cause of the swelling on the face. The pencil, which had been imbedded in the child's face for months, was brought to light when the surgeons made an incision at the point on the upper jaw where little Edward felt the worst pain.

Last October he was struck by an automobile and in some unusual manner the pencil was driven into his face.

TRIO CAPTURED IN SOUTH END HOLD-UP

Police Fire Shots at Youths Charged With Robbing Vermont Man

Three youths, all charged with beating and robbing a Vermont man, were captured on Randolph street, South End, early today, following a thrilling chase in which several shots were fired.

The trio, all of whom deny implication in the holdup, gave their names as Frank Jackson, twenty-one years old, of Bolton street, South Boston; Max Kramer, twenty-one, of Quincy street, Roxbury, and Samuel Popkin, sixteen, of Shawmut avenue.

Patrick Galvin, fifty-nine years old, of Vernon, Vt., was held up by the three youths on Union Park street, according to the police. One of the trio caught him around the neck and held him while another struck him over the head, it is alleged. He was then robbed of $145.

Galvin's shouts were heard by policemen of the East Dedham street station. With the approach of the officers the trio fled, turning into Randolph street. The stolen money, it is alleged, was thrown into a doorway as they ran.

The police fired several shots after the youths who were cornered near the Randolph street playground. The money was found in a doorway by the police.

LAYS SCARCITY OF BOOKS TO PUBLIC'S EAGERNESS

By REV. DR. ALEXANDER MANN,
President Board of Trustees, Boston Public Library.

Rev. Dr. Alexander Mann.

I have noted with interest the effort which the Boston American is making in behalf of more books for the Boston Public Library and its branches. The need of more books, especially for the branches and for the children's departments in the branches, is well known to the trustees of the library.

From time to time in their annual reports they have called the attention of the city authorities to the need of a much larger appropriation for the purchase of books. Official statements of this kind, however, are read by comparatively few, and it is gratifying to find a city newspaper thus coming to the aid of the library and making its need known to thousands of citizens.

PRAISES AMERICAN'S EFFORTS.

Such work by a newspaper is a real and valuable public service and will, I am sure, be appreciated by all who have the interests of our library at heart.

You have asked me to describe the book situation in the library. In one way it is a sad story, but in another it is a cheerful one. There is a great deficiency of books for both adults and children, but that is due to the eagerness of Bostonians for good reading matter. We should be proud of this.

The board of trustees has asked the city government for an appropriation of $100,000 to be used in buying new books. This compares with $60,000 received last year, $50,000 in 1919, and $45,000 the year before.

CIRCULATION ENLARGED.

This is a gradual increase but not nearly enough to meet the growth in the demand for books. It must also be remembered that the cost of books has gone up over 50 per cent. in the last four years.

The circulation of books has grown tremendously, taxing our facilities to the limit. In the year 1919, 2,300,732 books were borrowed; in 1918, 2,028,058, and in 1917, 2,074,455. Final figures for the year 1920 are not yet tabulated, but we have enough returns to show that there was a marked increase last year.

We have asked for something over $600,000 to maintain the library system this year, and the question might be raised why we do not cut down other items of expenditure and thus increase the amount available for books.

Let me say that we have reduced our budget for service and maintenance to the lowest figure we deem compatible with efficiency. The greatest need at the moment is more money for new books and it is that point which I am stressing.

The increased demand for books is partly due to a reaction from the war. Hundreds of thousands of men learned to use books while in the service, who previous to that time were unfamiliar with the advantages of the library.

They found that through the use of books they could prepare themselves for higher positions in the army and navy, and now that these men have returned to their home pursuits, they have continued their habit of reading. This is shown by a large increase in the demand for scientific and technical books.

Then there has been launched a big movement in Americanization, which has meant the placing of carefully selected books in various languages about America and its institutions in the various branches and reading rooms. These selections should be increased in those sections of the city where there is a large population of foreigners.

CHILDREN WAIT FOR BOOKS.

It is especially in these densely populated and foreign sections of the city that the need for more books is apparent. It is in the branches in these districts that children may be seen in lines, waiting for books to be returned by some reader, so that they can borrow them.

This is true, in spite of the fact that special attention has been given to the enlargement of the collections. Many of the youngsters, after waiting several hours, go home empty handed and disappointed.

We should not let this condition continue. Above all, we must see that the growing generation, those who will be the future of America, have plenty of good books to help fit them for their duties as citizens.

RESCUE WOMEN AT FIRE IN SALEM

Two Helped Out of Franklin Building as Flames Sweep Structure

Two women were rescued, and several men, whose escape had been cut off by smoke, made their way down ladders when fire started in the Franklin Building, in Washington square, West Salem, causing a damage of about $2,000. A general alarm was sounded.

Miss Annie Sullivan and Miss Margaret Trainor, who were in the headquarters of St. Mary's Guild, were assisted to the street by occupants of the building. The fire apparently started on the ground floor and worked upward.

The second floor is occupied by the Y. D. Club of Salem, St. Mary's Guild and the Rotary Club. The third floor is occupied by the Henry M. Meek Publishing Company. The occupants of the first floor are the Riley Drug Company, Salem Auto Supply Company, Patrick W. Murphy, undertaker; Stockwell & Millett, undertakers; J. J. Foley, barber, and the Salem Marine Society.

Appeals to U. S. to Live on Vegetables

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Wanted—A nation of vegetarians.

Dr. Cumming made an appeal to the country today to stop the slaughter of animals and to live on vegetables.

Dr. Cumming is secretary of the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers' Association, holding its annual meeting here.

"The fruit and vegetables such as we handle, and their products, could feed and clothe every man on earth," he said. "We sincerely hope for the time when the world will live on non-animal food."

GERMANS ANGRY AT EX-KAISER REPORTS

Holland Officially Denies Stories of Monarchistic Plotting by Hohenzollerns

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, Jan. 21.—The Dutch government, in a semi-official denial published today, brands as an absolute fake the inventions and sensational stories that the former Kaiser and crown prince are involved in a monarchistic plot to re-enter Germany.

Denial is also made of the story that Holland has cancelled the Kaiser's and his son's right of asylum in that country.

There is much indignation in Germany over these stories which are declared to be so obviously untrue that the greater part of the Dutch and German press did not print them.

Germans allege that the stories were "planted" in Vienna and Paris for a two-fold purpose. One reason, it is asserted, was that the French militaristic party hoped again to arouse the fears of the French people regarding the restoration of the monarchy in Germany. On the other hand, German anti-monarchists are accused of trying to influence the coming Prussian Parliamentary elections.

Coupled with the reports regarding the Kaiser and the Crown Prince were rumors that Ludendorff was about to spring a counter-revolutionary movement in Bavaria to clear the path for the monarchy there. Those reports seemed so substantial that I went to Munich to investigate.

I found that the stories had their basis chiefly in a factional fight that had broken out between a portion of Escherick's civil guard organization and friends of General Ludendorff.

CRIME WAVE IS EBBING, SAYS DRY MAN

Would Have Been Much Worse With Saloons Open, Declares Wayne B. Wheeler

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 21.—"The tide is turning toward law and order, and the crime wave is being checked."

This was the declaration of Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, before the law enforcement convention here.

"Even in New York," said Mr. Wheeler, "the comparison of the four important felonies of crime committed in 1920 with 1917 is favorable.

"It is more encouraging when we realize that the crime wave is the back-wash of the war. Other nations that are wet are hit harder by it than this country under prohibition. On December 10 Police President Schober, in Vienna, said crime has increased there five-fold this year. If saloons had been open during this period of unrest and financial stress, the crime wave would have been infinitely worse."

RESCUE SKATER FROM WATERS OF CHARLES

Tech Student Falls Through Ice; Rescued With Ladder by G. F. Harriman

While skating on the Charles river, near Cottage Farm bridge and Bay State road, J. A. Weaver, a Tech student, fell through the ice and was rescued from drowning by Gordon F. Harriman of No. 338 Bay State road and an unidentified man.

Harriman, looking out the window of his home, saw Weaver struggling in the water, and rushed to his assistance with a ladder. An unidentified man carrying a boat hook joined Harriman. The ladder was pushed out to Weaver, who grabbed hold of a rung and was pulled to safety by Harriman.

The student was then taken to Harriman's home and given clothing and hot broth.

'STORK' PACT STIRS POETS IN AROOSTOOK

Hoof of Pegasus Lands Hard on Doctors Deaf to Night Maternity Case Calls

Houlton, Me., Jan. 21.—There are almost as many poets as potatoes in Aroostook County these days. The pact recently signed by local doctors not to go into remote rural sections at night to attend maternity cases planted the writing germ.

Judging from effusions daily appearing in county newspapers, the muse appears to have infected half the population. The physicians have been made targets for a veritable barrage of verse. High school pupils, school teachers, hotel clerks, retired business men, constables and farmers' wives have turned "Shakespeares," and they are hurling literary spears and verbal harpoons at the medical men.

WOMEN IN FIGHTING MOOD.

The doctors have been meeting the intensive poetic artillery with what the public considers a very feeble return fire of excuses, evasion and alibis. Some of them have attempted to modify the terms of the pact they signed. Others are defiant.

The women are in fighting mood. They say the only solution appears to be to import "enterprising young doctors from the city."

The county is stirred. The doctors in their edict called attention to the scarcity of physicians and nurses in the region and advised the sending of maternity cases to hospitals.

They complain that many families in outlying districts summon doctors at night on needless cases. The fact that a newborn child was permitted to die and its young mother to go many hours without medical attendance after four Houlton doctors had ignored the pleadings of her husband started the rumpus.

DOCTORS CRITICISED.

The doctors in Houlton have been criticised for "placing personal comfort before professional duty." Poems and articles published eulogize the old-fashioned country doctor with his old horse and chaise and make comparisons with present-day physicians and their fleet automobiles that are anything but flattering.

The women claim many households cannot afford to send patients to hospitals, and point out that the two available hospitals are always overcrowded.

One of the latest poetic contributions written anonymously with apologies to Mother Goose reads:

Doctors, doctors, don't you cry,
We will love you bye and bye;
Soon with airships you will fly.
"Doctors, Doctors! Shan't you die?"

Another poem, signed "R. S. V. P.," deals with the death of the devil at his home. The devil directs his crown be given to Doctor X, who refused to attend a maternity case. The poem reads in part:

"For years and years I have run this dump,
And I've run it early and late,
Tho the world's gone dry and coal's been high,
And about two-thirds of it slate.

"And I've acted the way that a Devil should,
I've invented war and crime
And I've taught the gang to brew "Home Brew."
In the kitchen's dirt and grime.

"And I've seen lost souls, shrivel up on my coals,
With pain that would make you pale,
But never have I refused First Aid,
To a new-born baby's wail.

"But I'm going now leaving much undone,
That I have not time to tell,
But I wish to say ere I pass away,
That I know a fit king for hell.

"So hie at once to the Town of G—
And go as you ran a race,
And bring me back good Doctor X—
And crown him in my place."

TO PROBE U. S. PURCHASE OF GERMAN MONOPLANES

Washington, Jan. 21.—A deal in which the United States is alleged to have paid $306,000 for fourteen worthless German monoplanes, will be probed by Congress, if a resolution introduced by Representative Madden, Republican, of Illinois, is adopted.

The resolution calls upon Secretary of War Baker, Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Postmaster-General Burleson to explain the purchases, and also report the circumstances of the destruction of three of the machines by fire and the burning to death of three pilots.

CLAIMS FOREIGN NATIONS WAR ON PACKERS

Senator Sherman Says Zeal of Firms to Enter World Market Stirs Criticism

Washington, Jan. 21.—Much of the criticism of the packing industries in this country is due to the zeal of the packing companies to enter the world market, Senator Sherman, Republican, of Illinois, declared in the Senate in opposing the Kendrick-Kenyon packer control bill.

"The same opposition is heard against the United Fruit Company because of its operations in foreign markets," Sherman continued. "The opposition to the fruit company is caused by the control of one-third of the bananas in the world by the British.

"The opposition to American expansion of business is general abroad. Every opportunity to oppose the American business man is taken by foreign nations."

The packer bill will be disposed of in the Senate Monday.

Smith Girls--Amherst Boys at Peace Again

Northampton, Jan. 21.—The cruel war is ended, the shouting and tumult have died, and the dove of peace, wearing a beatific smile and flapping an olive branch in one claw, has returned to Smith College.

Already fraternization with the enemy, students of Amherst College, has begun, and negotiations are underway looking to a resumption of friendly relations.

A peace protocol has been drawn up and everyone concerned is happy as the traditional wedding bell, or the flowers that bloom in the Spring. Tra La!

Because, as the Smith girls say, while the Amherst boys unquestionably acted in a perfectly horrid manner, and their acts were such as would arouse indignation, not to say loathing, in any woman, they were without doubt inspired by certain malicious persons unworthy of notice, and why make everyone suffer for a few?

Furthermore the boys have made the amende honorable by voting unanimously that the students of Amherst wished to assure the students of Smith of their desire to co-operate in carrying out the agreement.

The agreement was reached at a conference between representatives of the students of both colleges. One of the terms agreed on was new chaperon rules for dances.

W. N. Zink, '21, president of the Interfraternity Conference of Amherst, has been delegated to see that the agreements are carried into effect and to receive and comply with any suggestions of complaint from Smith authorities or students.

POLICE BALL IS ATTENDED BY 12,000

Governor Cox Escorts Police Commissioner Curtis' Daughter in Grand March

An exhibition drill by eighty members of the force, under command of Captain Patrick King of police headquarters, was the feature of the Boston police ball, held in Mechanics Building. Officials in charge of the event estimated that 12,000 were present.

The hall was tastefully decorated and a midnight supper was served to guests. President William H. Robinson of the Police Relief Association led the grand march with Miss Charlotte M. Duncan. They were followed by Governor Channing H. Cox, whose partner was Miss Penelope Curtis, daughter of Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis; Lieutenant-Governor Alvan T. Fuller and Miss Lena Trumbull; Captain Philip Brown of the Governor's staff and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller; Inspector George M. Farrell and Miss Mary Birch; Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley with his daughter, Miss Irene K. Crowley.

BAIL REDUCTION REFUSED NORTH END BANKER

Alleged Attacker of Benjamin Swig Claimed $10,000 Bail Is Excessive

An effort was made before Judge Irwin in the Superior Criminal Court to have the bail of Nicola Sciaraffa reduced from $10,000 to $2,000, on the ground that the former sum is excessive in view of what actually occurred at the Tremont Trust Company.

Sciaraffa is now in the Charles street jail to answer in the Municipal Court to a complaint charging him with an assault with intent to kill Benjamin Swig, treasurer of the Tremont Trust Company, and Julius Shapiro, on Friday last. It is claimed that Sciaraffa at the point of a revolver demanded $30,000 from Swig.

According to counsel the purpose of the accused in going to the trust company was to induce the officials to pay over to him the sum of $15,000 he claims to have on deposit there, so that the money might be used for depositors in Sciaraffa's private bank on Prince street, now in the hands of a receiver. A dispute arose as to the transaction. Statements that Sciaraffa had demanded $30,000 were declared not to be the fact.

Judge Irwin inquired if Sciaraffa did not demand the money, and counsel for the latter replied in the negative. Assistant District Attorney Kinney, who opposed a reduction of bail, said that witnesses would testify that a demand for $30,000 was made. That demand apparently was assented to, but only for the purpose of grappling Sciaraffa and getting his revolver from him.

Judge Irwin said that unless he later changed his mind the bail would remain at the present figure.

Fox Hunters Halt Chase to Fight Farm Fire

Milford, Jan. 21.—Members of the New England Fox Hunt Club, holding an annual meet here this week, have come into prominence as impromptu fire fighters.

While chasing the wily fox in the vicinity of Bellingham, the hunters were attracted by a cloud of dense smoke, which on investigation, proved to be a farm house afire, with the adjoining garage and barn in peril.

Although the house and contents were destroyed, the garage and barn were saved, after a small shed between the barn and house had been forced from its foundation and removed a short distance by the hunters.

In the house was a hound dog which was also saved. The owner of the property is George Crooks, who with his family, was away at the time. Damage is estimated at $3,000.

BOSTON SHIP CONCERN IS BANKRUPT

Lowrance Navigation Co. Files Petition Blaming Drop in Freight Rates

The Lowrance Navigation Company of No. 109 State street, this city, following a vote of the company's stockholders, have just filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court, the schedule showing liabilities of $180,477.71 and assets of $101,827.68. Accompanying the petition is a statement declaring that "a sharp and unexpected decline in freight rates and consequent loss to the company" is the reason of the concern's insolvency.

The only secured creditors, according to the schedules, are First National Bank of Boston, which have claims valued at $21,872.84, of which $17,500 is a debt, and the Berwind-White Coal Mining Co. of New York, who have secured claims valued at $16,000, of which $11,000 is debt.

The secured claims of the First National Bank are for assignment of claims of the Taggart Coal Co. of Savannah, Ga., and an assignment of freight and insurance on the steamship Bassan.

The secured claims of the mining company are for an assignment of collect freight on the steamship Solhang.

The Lowrance Navigation Co. gave its occupation as shipping.

$1,300 REWARD FOR TRADUCER OF POLICE

Springfield Officials Hunt Author of Letter Charging Aid to Liquor Runners

Springfield, Jan. 21.—Thirteen hundred dollars in cash awaits the person who can furnish Detective Captain Frank W. Quilty with information leading to the expose of the author of a letter charging him and the police department with aiding liquor running.

The offer has developed from a story published yesterday by a local paper with portions of the letter signed by "Jacob Kajanovitz." The paper's story describes its investigation of the charges since receipt of the letter, January 6th, and gives the police a clean bill of health.

A man named Jacob Kaganowitz of New York city and formerly a Springfield resident has been examined by the Board of Police Commissioners and exonerated in connection with the case. The name on the letter was signed by typewriter. The letter is declared a forgery by the commissioners.

Mayor Leonard who, with the commissioners, received a copy of the letter has declined to place any credence in it.

Detective Lieutenant James T. Raiche and Attorney William J. Granfield, named in the letter with Captain Quilty, are contributors to the reward.

$20,000 WON BY BRIDE AT ROULETTE

Betty Schwartz Staked Luck on Age; Husband Takes $12,000 at Craps

New York, Jan. 21.—Honeymoon luck came the way of Mrs. Betty Schwartz, pretty, twenty, and a bride of less than six weeks, when she visited Monte Carlo on her wedding journey.

Believing her age was a lucky number, she played twenty steadily at the roulette wheel and the good little wheel kept right on turning up at twenty until her winnings amounted to 100,000 francs, or $20,000, a nifty sum even if francs aren't all they used to be.

BAY BAIN

Betty Schwartz

Not content with pouring that tidy fortune into the lap of the pretty bride Dame Fortune remained on the job when Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz boarded the Imperator for home.

Five professional gamblers on the boat helped Mr. Schwartz to get a harvest of $12,000 in a crap game just before the steamer reached New York.

After that the Schwartz family decided not to drive their luck and quit gambling for life.

Woman Asks Aid for 'Misunderstood Girl'

"Make way for the girl who is misunderstood!"

This is the plea which Mrs. Martha P. Falconer of the American Social Hygiene Board of New York city makes to fathers, mothers, big sisters and brothers of the poor little girl who is misunderstood.

"For if you don't make way for her, if you don't try to understand her early, you will have to understand her later, when that understanding may mean an understanding with the judge of the court and the officer of the reformatory as well."

Mrs. Falconer is at present in Boston, [illegible] several groups of [illegible]

[illegible] made it my business to find out the reason why the misunderstood girl landed in court and the House of Detention. I found there were several reasons [illegible]. One was a mother who couldn't comprehend her. Often it was a stepmother of this sort. Again it was work that the girl hated, often the girl was not up to requirements. For a long time we have expected too much of our mentally deficient.

CURE FOR STRAYING.

"Now, if you ask me the surest cure for much straying both of the young girl and boy, I would say an early marriage. Your marriage age in Massachusetts, eighteen for the woman, twenty-one for the man, is sensible for many young people.

"But here let me say a word of caution. I cannot think of anything which would help society, the girl, and the family [illegible] to be more than med[illegible] before a marriage [illegible]

"I say again and again, it has been demonstrated that one thing is necessary. That is that fathers and mothers of the girl should [illegible] [illegible] be spread [illegible] [illegible] as well. It is also important for the girl [illegible]

"Now there is another rock upon which the marriage of the modern [illegible] girl [illegible] often goes to [illegible]. It is the rock of [illegible] [illegible] girls, too many girls marry because they think their economic problems will be settled for life as soon as they have a man to support them. The poor innocents find out too late that their money troubles are just beginning. Therefore I say train a girl in managing the family budget before a man has asked her to be his for life.

SHOULD LEARN TO DARN.

"The [illegible] will have more [illegible] being for life if the girl has learned the most economical way of [illegible] and how to darn the family stockings to make them last twice as long as the old way. Many [illegible] [illegible] of the domestic [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] New this is not [illegible]

"The sooner our [illegible] [illegible] wants, are an [illegible] [illegible] successful marriages.

[illegible] It is better [illegible] [illegible] our girls. A little [illegible] guidance at the right time [illegible] with a lot of [illegible] Society [illegible] must [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] girl for the sake of [illegible] [illegible] in the finest material of [illegible] human material."

But in saying all this to Boston, [illegible] she brought [illegible] to Newman [illegible] [illegible] here in Boston have the [illegible] marriage laws and the best [illegible] for girls of any place I know. [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of happy wives and happy [illegible]

Too much
sex stuff in the movies?
What is it doing to your daughter?

SOMETHING is certainly wrong with the movies. Over-emphasis of sex has been played to the limit.

What that something is, is fearlessly revealed by Benjamin B. Hampton, who is himself President of four big motion picture companies and Vice-president of a fifth.

He tells you why we get such titles as these—"Secret Sin", "The Lure of the Other Woman", "Guilty Wives", etc., etc. Why we get such pictures as this—"Her husband drew the girl to him—a long, long kiss—! this pretty girl, so unlike his wife, her eyes lighted with love-flames, smiling wantonly" etc., etc.

Why must motion picture houses offer this abnormal kind of amusement?

Mr. Hampton tells you things no one on the inside has ever told before. And he gives you besides an interesting peep into the daily lives of many of the stars of movie-land.

He tells you just what is the matter with a certain type of movie and exactly why this sex-stuff is being offered to young girls.

You will be shocked when you learn who is responsible.

"Too Much Sex-Stuff in the Movies" is the most startling article ever published on the subject. And most important of all, the author explains exactly how you can change these conditions in your town. Read Mr. Hampton's frank article on page 11 of Pictorial Review for February.

In less than two years the supply of whiskey and [illegible] in the United States will be exhausted or shipped abroad and [illegible] who have been supplying [illegible] will be forced to [illegible], says H. [illegible] of prohibition at Washington [illegible] in Boston [illegible].

Hardy [illegible] remain [illegible] and at the rate it is being shipped abroad the supply will be gone in less than twenty-four months. Shipments are being made under a "joker" which the exporters have discovered in the law permitting export provided the shipper signs a statement saying the liquor is for non-beverage purposes.

The flood of good [illegible] liquor to thirsty throats overseas is shown by the figures for the first ten months of last year.

Shipments for this period reached 32,9[illegible] gallons, with a money value of approximately [illegible] more than $3,000,000 [illegible] the value of [illegible].

The growth of the liquor export trade through the port of Boston is shown by the following table, compiled from figures [illegible].

Censor Bars Shimmy, "Whatever It Is"

They can shimmy in Chicago.

But the superintendent of Boston's schools admits that he does not even know what the shimmy is!

And official Censor John W. Casey of the Licensing Board says that [illegible].

[illegible] of Oratory says all modern dances should be fumigated, and the shimmy put out of commission.

All are agreed that the shimmy has [illegible] Boston [illegible] have no [illegible].

LID LIFTED IN CHICAGO.

[illegible] dean of [illegible] reported to have [illegible] modern dances [illegible] Chicago [illegible] subject for the superintendent of schools there was per[illegible] shimmying or toddling in any of the [illegible] under his jurisdiction, said Frank V. Thompson, superintendent of Boston schools.

"I admit that I do not know just what kind of a dance the shimmy is, but I can [illegible] for this: no dance [illegible] character is ever [illegible] conducted under the supervision of our school system.

"Boston has always been conservative in all things. As the centre of [illegible] we have also a sense of [illegible] the fact that, while we want our young people to [illegible] with [illegible] of entertainment [illegible] of the whole [illegible].

"No one has ever had an opportunity [illegible] standard of entertainment under the [illegible] of the Boston school system.

"As to dances conducted by our [illegible], they are for grown-up people. No children are allowed. These dances are always under the supervision of a [illegible] matron, and should anything of an objectionable character occur it is promptly checked. By careful supervision we have been able to keep Boston school entertainments free from criticism.

"Our high school dances, with the exception of [illegible] a year, are always held in the afternoon, and under supervisors [illegible] see that by our conservative [illegible] we have prevented anything of an unsavory character [illegible] at these functions."

Mr. Thompson pointed out that a [illegible] elected by the people and working in harmony with the superintendent and the headmasters of the various schools of the city had [illegible] that kept the entertainments as well as the educational facilities at a high standard and that it was traditional in its ef[illegible].

BARRED IN BOSTON.

The shimmy dance has been barred [illegible] Boston as far as the permitting [illegible] concerned, according to [illegible] of the Licensing Board [illegible] Hall.

In an interview with a representative of the Boston American, Mr. Casey said that long ago the ban was placed on this kind of dancing and [illegible] remain down [illegible] Mr. [illegible] no [illegible] to the shimmy dance. We will not permit any of the modern dances that are considered improper. While Boston may be considered prudish, there is every reason to believe that objectionable dances and particularly the shimmy should be barred from entertainments in Boston. We want the young people to have a good time, and get all the enjoyment out of life, all of which can be had without indulgence in improper dancing. Permits are never granted unless assurances are given that proper police protection will be guaranteed."

Mr. Casey stated that he had recently been taken to task by a well known Boston critic as being too prudish about the shimmy.

To Tighten Up Rules

Washington, Jan. 21.—New instructions, aimed to close the prohibition enforcement lines more tightly, were issued by Internal Revenue Commissioner Williams today to prohibition directors and supervisors. The new instructions are aimed particularly at alleged illegal use of permits to sell liquor in wholesale lots for medical purposes and for industrial purposes.

CITIZENS FREE CLERGYMAN WHO WOULDN'T 'SQUEAL'

Amarillo, Tex., Jan. 21.—A citizens' committee today effected the release of the Rev Morgan Lee Starke, noted Methodist Episcopal evangelist of Brooklyn, N. Y., after he had spent eighteen hours imprisonment at Canyon, a mining town near here. The evangelist, jailed because he refused to reveal where he had witnessed a "crap game," was offered an apology on behalf of the town. A score of guards had been thrown around the jail during the night to prevent a jail delivery by irate citizens.

WATCH MOVIES IN FOLLOWING $5,000 TEST

Attendance at Nearly 400 Co-operating Theatres Will Aid Identifying Photos

[illegible] test which has [illegible] four weeks [illegible] before [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] $5 [illegible] [illegible] fifth, $10 [illegible] [illegible] awards.

There will be no further showing of test pictures in motion-picture theatres. That feature of the $5,000 Test ceases with today. Participants still will have urgent need of the assistance which will come to them through regular visits to the co-operating theatres, however, and we urge this course upon them with all the strength of printers' ink.

WATCH THE MOVIES.

Many [illegible] have complained [illegible] the showing of the slides has [illegible] been of little direct aid practical [illegible] because of the failure to [illegible] Identification Slips [illegible] the theatres [illegible] the pictures [illegible] the distribution of these slips was [illegible] a burden which the associated newspapers could not [illegible] the theatres to carry throughout the Test. [illegible] even to the good nature of theatre managers.

So [illegible] to [illegible] the motion picture [illegible] This is the best course of all for those who have made up their minds to earn a part of the $5,000. The magazines will help; there are books devoted to the Who's Who of the Films, lobby [illegible] are not to be overlooked, [illegible] all is constant [illegible] upon the offerings [illegible] theatre.

NEARLY 400 CO-OPERATING.

It should go without saying, but the Movie Editor feels that it ought to be said, that the associated newspapers particularly recommend to their readers the nearly four hundred theatres which have co-operated in the Test so splendidly. The list has been printed [illegible] You [illegible] familiar with the name and location of the co-operating theatre [illegible] to you.

Straight [illegible] the Movie Editor [illegible] day without a letter to answer. Nobody has written in to complain even that he has shown "two pictures of Clara Kimball Young." He doesn't say that he HAS shown two pictures of that beautiful young woman, or two of any other player, and he isn't saying that he has not or will not "repeat"—but that, you remember, was one of the "kicks" of yesterday's anonymous correspondent.

Of course, the Test gradually will become more difficult, but stick! When all is over and the list of players' names is printed you will see that the two newspapers have kept faith in every particular.

Be sure that when a puzzler comes along you will not be alone in your temporary difficulty. Two hundred and nineteen of you MUST divide the $5,000. One of you—who really knows the people of Shadowland—will walk away with $1,000 in cash.

Entire Surplus Suit Stocks from Kuppenheimer and Rochester's Best Maker

Taken over by the Kennedy stores for quick disposal at prices way under what such good clothes will sell for next spring. This is another instance of "distress" prices—another case where the price pendulum has swung too far the other way in order to dispose of merchandise quickly—a good illustration of how over-production may turn a manufacturer's possible profits into a big actual loss.

J'Ever Hear a Whale Grunt? Listen on the Oscillator

The above diagram shows how the Fessenden oscillator, an invention which played a part in the war, would warn ships equipped with the device of the presence of icebergs. The oscillator is placed in the forward hold of a ship with the face of the apparatus exposed to the surface of the ocean. When the vessel reaches within one half to two and one-half miles of an iceberg the oscillator throws off sound waves which hit the iceberg below the water line and rebound in the form of an echo to the ship and are distinctly recorded on a telephone-like attachment of the invention. This device, it is claimed, would have prevented the sinking of the Titanic.

The time has come (said Mr. Fay),
To speak of divers things,
Of grunting whales and whistling fish
And wild mosquitoes' wings

With apologies to the late Lewis Carroll

Did you, gentle customer, ever hear a whale grunt?

We[illegible] ever [illegible] dead of [illegible] by [illegible] after of [illegible] of a [illegible] walking along the ceiling?

Can you tell a mackerel from a halibut in the dark by the different noises they make in swimming?

To all of which you undoubtedly answer with a loud and indignant "no" and add "neither did you, since July 1, 1919."

You want to know what kind of tomfoolery is this, these days of the high cost of white paper and everything?

But bear with us a moment. The questions are not as idiotic as they might seem. Whales do grunt. Flies do make a noise when they walk, although you may not hear it with the unaided ear.

The answer is the oscillator, a scientific instrument used by seamen to hear what is going on under the surface of the water.

REGISTERS ALL SOUNDS.

It registers all sorts of sounds, from the rush of a school of swimming fishes to the echo that comes out of an iceberg when a steam whistle is blown in its vicinity.

The oscillator is one of the most important of inventions, and the Mr. Fay referred to in the little verse at the top is its prophet.

He is Harold J. W. Fay, general manager of the Submarine Signal Company of State street, manufacturers of the Fessenden oscillators. He is full of his subject, and the nonsensical questions do not represent what he really thinks of his contrivance.

Among the statements he makes for the oscillator is the very important one that if the Titanic had been equipped with it that ill-fated liner would have discovered the presence of the iceberg and would never have struck it.

Hear Mr. Fay on the oscillator and what it can do and has done. "Whales certainly do grunt," he said. "That may be why they are sometimes called sea-going pigs.

"One of our men while experimenting in the North Sea with a beacon [illegible] heard the grunting of the big sea pigs as they porpoised their way through the deep."

Mr. Fay does not pretend to know why whales grunt. He states the fact and lets his hearer draw his own conclusions.

WOULD HAVE SAVED TITANIC.

"This instrument is marvellous," he continued. "It can be so perfected as to record the sound of a fly walking across paper or the vibration of a mosquito's wings.

"Observations of United States naval officers bear me out. Sound waves thrown off by the oscillator at from a half mile to two and one-half miles hit an iceberg below the water line and rebounded in the form of an echo to the ship, being distinctly recorded.

"If the Titanic had used such an instrument the sound waves would have warned her officers of the presence of the iceberg."

Here is the official report of Captain J. H. Quinan of the United States ship Miami on the iceberg experiment:

"We stopped near the largest berg and range finder and sextant computed it to be 450 feet long and 130 feet high. Although we had reached within 150 yards of the perpendicular face of this berg and obtained no echo from the steam whistle Professor Fessenden and Mr. Blake, representatives of the Submarine Signal Company, obtained satisfactory results with the submarine electric oscillator, placed ten feet below the surface. They got distant echoes from the berg at various distances."

"Perhaps the most important work this instrument will do when all ships are equipped with it will be to prevent collisions," continued Mr. Fay. "Think of the lives that can be saved and the property damage that can be prevented.

HEARD GERMANS KILL SELVES.

"Also, it will enable a modern steamship to shorten her running time between Europe and America by a day because of the ability to discover icebergs without traveling at reduced speed."

Mr. Fay told an amazing story of what was accomplished with an oscillator during the war.

A German submarine was disabled. Allied ships stood by to finish the enemy craft if she emerged. One of the ships was equipped with an oscillator, and by use of it could hear twenty-one revolver shots when the Germans took the suicide route in preference to suffocation or capture.

Oscillator Has Look of Phonograph Disc

The oscillator is a cylindrical-shaped apparatus containing a thin steel disc 2¼ feet in diameter, similar in appearance to a phonograph record.

It is placed in the forward hold of ships. The face of the apparatus is exposed to the ocean. The sound vibrations are made with this large steel disc, the operator being stationed in the upper part of the ship.

He receives sound waves with an apparatus similar to a telephone receiver and sends with an apparatus not unlike a telegraph key.

SUIT REVEALS 'DIAMOND GUS' TWICE 'WED'

Late A. K. Hall Omitted Ceremonies; Second 'Widow' Claims $150,00 Bequest

New York, Jan. 21.—The late Augustus K. Hall known along Broadway as "Diamond Gus," and recognized as the only rival of "Diamond Jim" Brady, had two wives, although the formal marriage ceremony was omitted in each case, it was disclosed here.

The disclosure came in the first day's hearing of the suit of Jean L. Sherwood, former actress, of California, against the administrator of Hall's estate to recover $150,000 which she said Hall had promised to leave her in his will. Hall died October 19, 1919.

Miss Sherwood's lawyer declared in court that he will prove that Hall made a will and that it was destroyed after the later's death.

Miss Sherwood in her complaint asserts that she and Hall entered a marital pact in March, 1909, although without a formal ceremony. Hall was later sued for separation and $1,000 a month alimony by his first wife, similarly wed, Emma Hall. She secured a decree and accepted $60,000 in lieu of alimony. Miss Sherwood then threatened to sue him for fraud but he promised to leave her $150,000 in his will and she continued to live with him until his death.

Hall at one time owned a 143-carat diamond which he offered to sell to George Gould for $200,000 at the time Vivien Gould married Lord Decies. It was later sold for $125,000.

North Attleboro, Jan. 21.—"A patrolman's job consists of more than walking the streets," remarked John A. The recent sermon of the Rev. Wesley G. Huber, pastor of the Baptist Church, in which the charge was made that gambling is the town's greatest vice, and in which two alleged gambling houses were named, has caused a furore in the town, and is directly responsible for the edict to conduct a "clean up" campaign.

Deputy Sheriff Frank P. Toner and the Rev. Mr. Huber held a conference in which the pastor promised his support in the campaign against gambling.

Is Old Age Due to Lost Gland Power?

New Gland Discoveries May Turn Back Clock for Men and Women Everywhere

Animal Gland Treatment Helps Thousands of Weak, Anaemic and Prematurely Old People to Regain Youthful Health

HAS the fountain of eternal youth at last been discovered? This is a question that scientists everywhere are discussing—for recent experiments have resulted in a discovery which seems to indicate that "youthfulness at 90" is not so impossible after all.

They have discovered that the reason many people become run-down and prematurely old is because their ductless glands are run-down. Yet even more startling than this, is the discovery that run-down glands can now be built up by using the glands of monkeys, sheep, cattle and other animals.

Already thousands of run-down people are taking advantage of this discovery and from all sides remarkable results are reported. People who suffered for years with weakness, anaemia, nervousness, lack of vitality and general run-downness are said to have quickly regained youthful health and vigor.

The reason for these results becomes perfectly evident when we consider that instead of merely treating the symptoms of run-down condition, this new method goes straight to the cause—run-down ductless glands.

The Real Truth About Animal Glands

According to the latest discoveries our glands help govern the building up of the billions of cells in the muscles, brain and nerves in the body. They are said to do this by means of a substance called hormones, which they supply to the blood. When through over-work, illness, or excesses our glands become weakened they are unable to supply these hormones. It is then that we are visited by the agonizing symptoms of run-downness.

We are troubled with frequent headaches, become irritable, moody and forgetful, ordinary physical or mental activity exhausts us, our cheeks lose their youthful glow, we become anaemic, our eyes become dull, our hair grows dry and dusty looking, we lose weight and have the appearance of being all "dragged out." We become sickly, dull, unattractive, in a word—old.

Formerly, when people became run-down it was customary for them to begin dosing their stomachs and nerves with drugs and stimulants.

In other words, they only treated the symptoms.

Keep the Glands Young

The new method, by getting right to the cause, aims to keep the glands young. As long as our glands are young and function normally they will continue to supply the hormones, so necessary to youthful health. And that the animal gland treatment is effective in keeping our glands young and active is amply shown by the actual results shown in the cases of those who have taken it.

Case after case is cited in medical literature to show the decided increase in muscular, mental and nervous activity following the use of animal gland treatment in various forms. Weak and decrepit men and women are reported to have been transformed into people of surprising health, strength and vitality. And scarcely a week passes but what articles appear in newspapers describing further wonders that are being accomplished in this new field.

The Secret of Nerve Force

In addition to being helpful in the treatment of premature old age and run-down condition, this new method is especially effective in the treatment of nervous disorders.

People whose nerves were formerly constantly "on edge," who were given to long fits of mental depression and worry, who were actually "nervous wrecks," report decided benefit after only the first few days' treatment.

Now for First Time Offered to Public

Formerly it was thought that an operation was necessary in order to benefit by the animal gland treatment. Due to the prohibitive cost of such operations this method could never hope to become within the reach of everyone.

And so it remained to certain scientists to find a way in which animal glands could be administered without an operation, and at a cost which everyone could afford—and after extensive experimenting this method was found.

Under the name of Glandex Compound gland extracts which have been taken from the glands of healthy sheep and cattle are now available in tablet form, and may be procured at any druggist's.

In addition to containing animal gland extract, Glandex Compound contains peptonate of iron, which for years has been prescribed by physicians as a blood builder. Thus we have a tonic which combines two of the greatest strength and health builders known—iron for the blood and gland extracts for our glands.

Splendid Results Reported

Thousands of men and women in all walks of life are now taking Glandex Compound and decided results are noted. And is it any wonder? This new discovery helps to supply the very elements that are lacking in most run-down people's bodies.

People who for years suffered from nervous weaknesses and general ill-health are said to have experienced a remarkable return to youthful health and strength. After the first few days' use many say that splendid results are noted.

Increased weight, mental and physical alertness, rosy cheeks, health, strength, vitality and endurance—these are but a few of the benefits which may be looked for when the glands are strengthened and the blood built up.

Don't Risk a Penny

Simply go to your druggist. He will supply you with Glandex Compound. Use it, following directions, for 10 days. Then note the results.

If you do not feel that it has increased your health, strength and endurance, if your mirror does not show a marked improvement in your appearance, in short—if you do not feel better in every way—go to your druggist and he will refund your money without question.

Remember—you risk nothing. Try Glandex Compound for 10 days. If you don't feel that it has helped you, your money will be returned. But act at once for druggists tell us that the great demand for Glandex Compound frequently makes it impossible for them to keep a supply on hand.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Don't stay gray! Nobody can tell when you darken gray, faded hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

"THEM'S MY SENTIMENTS!"

Stocks Weak in New York at Noon; Call Money 7%; Foreign Exchange Steady at Start

MOTOR ISSUES SHOW MOST STRENGTH

A Few Specialties Are Advanced by Pool Operations; Oils Are Irregular

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, prices having touched the lowest level of the forenoon. [illegible] the downward movement while motors displayed the most group strength. Studebaker was prominent being up more than two points at its highest. Oils were irregular, with Caddo gaining the most. A few specialties were advanced by pool operations. General Asphalt moved up and down within about two points range. International Corporation, Chandler and Pierce Arrow were strong.

Among weakest stocks were Car and Foundry, American Woolen common, Atlantic Gulf, Baldwin, Bethlehem B, Crucible Republic Steel, Houston Oil, Mexican Petroleum, Royal Dutch, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck and Industrial Alcohol. They had receded from one to two points. The market was active, first hour transactions exceeding 30,000 shares.

Call money opened at 7 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were steady at the start.

LOWER AT THE OPENING.

When the market opened it was found that stocks were in supply, and although operations sustained a few specialties for awhile prices began to decline on first sales. Within a brief period all kinds of stocks were sagging. Early losses were not large, the downward movement being easy. The higher call rate was a disturbing influence. It advanced at a time when it was common understanding that the money strain had relaxed somewhat and that funds for stock market purposes were supposed to be ample. At the end of an hour the only issue to show pronounced strength was Texas Coal & Oil. There had been some improvement since the opening, however. Selling pressure had lightened and a few issues were back on the opening level or a shade above it. Rails showed as much firmness as any group.

PUBLIC NOT SPECULATING.

It has been found difficult, except in the case of a few specialties, to advance stocks of late. The professional element is making the market at present, and that crowd is bearish in inclination at present. The public is not participating, and the few outsiders who are dabbling in stocks just now are mostly of the seasoned variety who are as apt to take the short side as to operate on the other. The industrial situation is said to be getting better, but business in general is very quiet. The decrease in the gross earnings of rails is significant of this. Those of the Southern Railway slumped more than $550,000 in the first fortnight of this month. Chicago bankers who have returned home from New York report that sentiment is more cheerful around Wall street. But this is because of expectation rather than any betterment as yet. Easier money is said to be distant. Trade revival will increase demand and work against lower rates.

PRICES FALL IN DULL BOSTON TRADING

Local Market Is as Narrow as Quiet; Curb Trend Is Downward

Prices were lower on the Boston exchange at the opening and there was little rallying tendency during the forenoon. It was a narrow market in every sense. Not only was trading quiet, but fluctuations averaged small. Local speculation was featureless. Many issues held unchanged from yesterday's final prices. Stocks to recede a point were United Drug common and preferred. New England Telephone advanced one. Other first hour changes were fractional. Very little was done in coppers. Rails were dormant as a class and business in packing issues was very limited. Gray & Davis was the only stock of its kind to appear up to mid-morning.

Small gains were made by Eastern Manufacturing and Bigheart, while stocks to recede a little included Mexican Investment, Gray & Davis, New Cornelia, Loew's Inc., United Shoe, United Fruit and American Telephone.

CURB PRICES DOWN.

The Curb had a quiet start and a downward trend. Most price changes during the forenoon were toward a lower level. Early leaders were Arizona Silver, Boston & Montana, Eureka and Mutual. Among those to advance at the start were Arizona Silver and Arizona Tip Top. Early losses were sustained by Albany, Divide, Denbigh, Eureka, Mutual, Randolph and Verde Mines.

At the end of an hour Arizona Silver was up 1 cents at 31 cents while Boston & Montana was off 2 cents at 55 cents, Mutual 2 cents at 45, Bagdad 1 cent at 21 cents, Merrimac Development ¼ cent at 4 cents and Randolph 3 cents at 30 cents. Eureka had recovered its loss.

RAILROADS SLOW IN PLACING RAIL ORDERS

Rail buying has not been up to expectation. Roads are slow in placing orders for a large amount required this year owing to business depression and decreased traffic. They are trying to hold on to cash as much as industrial concerns and spending as little as possible on re-equipment.

The Iron Age says that rail orders reported from Pittsburgh this week are not new, and adds: "There is even backwardness on the part of some lines in specifying on their rail contracts, leaving rail mills with lighter rollings than they had counted on for the Winter months. Legislation authorizing payments of the millions the government owes the railroads is called for by a situation already acute."

Earnings by Cities Service

For 1920 the Cities Service Co. reports net earnings of $23,997,566, compared with $19,273,713 for the corresponding period of the preceding year. Net to reserves, common stock and surplus amounted to $17,370,463, compared with $13,135,590. For December the net earnings showed $1,765,889, against $1,696,033 in December of 1919 and the net to reserves, common stock and surplus $1,190,764, compared with $1,154,675.

Wall Street Briefs

Gross of the Canadian National road increased $304,749 in the second week of January. During the first fortnight of the year the gain was $476,506.

For the year ended November 30, [illegible] Manhattan Shirt Co. reports surplus after charges and Federal taxes of $1,74[illegible],96[illegible], equivalent after deduction of $112,000 for preferred dividends to $2.81 a share on $5,000,000 common, compared with $1,125,308 or $3.06 the preceding year.

Net sales for 1920 by the B. F. Goodrich Co. approximated $150,000,000, but earnings were largely dissipated by writing down inventories of raw materials it had bought and had on hand.

A local financial publication says it is practically certain that Studebaker Corporation directors at their meeting on January 31 will vote to continue the $7 annual dividend on common stock.

For the October 30 fiscal year Armour & Co. reports net profits of $5,3[illegible],975, equivalent after preferred dividends to $2.[illegible] on $100,000,000 common stock against $14,098,[illegible] or $18.11 a share on common in 1919.

The Continental Motors report for the year ended with October 31, 1920: Net profit after charges and Federal taxes of $5,547,604, against $3,4[illegible],725 for the preceding year.

It is estimated that Chicago & Alton's deficit for 1920 will be $1,240,761, or $248,312 more than in 1919.

National [illegible] reported for 1920 net after taxes of $7,54[illegible],[illegible], equivalent to $18.02 a share on $29,234,000 common, compared with $5,849,868 or $12.34 a share in 1919, and $5,135,840, or $11.63 a share in 1918.

Calling of Loans Contributed to a Change in the Trend of Prices

By BROADAN WALL

New York, Jan. [illegible]—The stock market developed a reactionary tendency yesterday in the last hour after having shown strength for about four hours. Several new high prices were made for the movement and business was on a larger scale than in any of the previous sessions.

The reaction was a source of satisfaction on the part of many of the commission houses which for three weeks have prevented their customers from purchasing stocks by advising them to wait for a reaction before making new commitments.

"BUGS" BAER SAYS:

DOINGS OF OUR SET

THE thermometer jumped from four to seven above. But those four degrees won't cook anything. D'Annunzio has decided to stop burning while Rome fiddles. He has got himself a battery of scissors and a book of paper and is going to cut himself out another army. Pussyfoot Johnson lectured the [illegible] passengers on the evil of drink and the wasting of good money thereon and the audience turned, so he stepped out and returned good for evil.

PUSSYFOOT realizes that bootlegging will live forever. Let it die a natural death. What's become of the old-fashioned gent who used to blow on his hands to get 'em warm? Eighteenth amendment killed that. If skirts get much shorter the girls will have to buy their tresses in millinery shops.

ANOTHER Bergdoll has asked the judge to let him play hide-and-seek with a pot of gold. The Bergdolls own a big Philadelphia brewery. They put whiskers on the smokestack and disguised it as a church. The next Rockaway balloon excursion will be in a cellar. Those three ex-aviators got back from Moose Factory and will be court martialled for getting lost without a senatorial license.

THE short circuited Hohenzollerns are going to electrify the world by holding another inaugural parade in a blind alley. The Crown Prince says he is a simple family man. Guilty. The Kaiser is tired of using an ash barrel for a crown. They operated on Edsel Ford for appendicitis and found a missing cylinder instead. Edsel is recovering rapidly as the more you take out of a Ford the better it runs.

THE only thing built without Brindell's permission is the case against him. George Moreland lent us a check for fifty dollars that will always be a check for fifty dollars. If George ever meets us again, he had better throw some salt over his left shoulder and be four miles away by the time it lands. Put on your ermine toupee next month, as it will be the first anniversary of the Elwell mystery. The secret of the Smith Brothers' success is that they invented a coughdrop you had to chew instead of sucking. The best way to start your flivver engine in this cold weather is to wait for Spring.

BOYS MEET AT QUINCY TONIGHT

All Star Show Arranged by Commonwealth Directors for Club's Next Meeting

By JACK CONWAY

[illegible] Snyder, Roxbury's [illegible] can be seen in [illegible] with Joe Lynch in a New York ring. Leo Flynn, who is making the matches for New York's big indoor players, has asked Tony Palozolo, Snyder's manager, for his terms.

Before the Roxbury youth can land a tussle with Lynch he must first conquer Paddy Owens of Cambridge, whom he is booked to meet in a ten-session bout at the Quincy Boxing Club tonight. Owens has an idea he can beat any of our New England bantamweights and believes it would be a good plan to start his merry ring surge by disposing of Snyder. It looks like a fast bout with plenty of peppery punching.

[illegible] Stone of Weymouth and Young Davies of Manchester, N. H., will mingle in the semi-final of eight frames. Johnny Connors of Roxbury and Young Tacsey of Roxbury will box six rounds as will Dick Pangraze of Quincy and K. O. Vaden of East Boston.

All-Star Show at Commonwealth A. A.

The Commonwealth A. A. will present a strong all-star card for the members tomorrow night. Terry Brooks West End welterweight will try to conquer Young Gould of Brockton. This should develop into a hard, rough tussle. When this pair last met, Brooks won by a knockout but Gould avers the result will be reversed tomorrow evening.

Johnny Clinton, who has been battling under the Eddie Mack banner, will try conclusions with Frankie Conlin of Buffalo in another ten-round contest. Conlin is rated as Buffalo's best lightweight, which is saying quite a lot. Clinton has been boxing well and should make things mighty interesting for the miller from the Bison City.

Pal Reid of Framingham will collide with some real opposition when he meets Jack Savage of Brockton in the feature ten-round number. Savage recently pricked the Nixie Searles bubble and now maintains that he can dispose of Reid.

Carlyle Club to Put on Double Windup

The Carlyle A. C. has arranged another double windup for its show next Monday night. Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford will have George Brown of New York as an opponent in the final match of ten rounds. The three Browns—George, Frankie and Harry—each possess enough class to make things interesting for any of our local lightweights. Billy Woods of Manchester, N. H., will try conclusions with Frankie Fleming of New York in another ten-session affair. In addition there will be two eights and a four rounder between a couple of heavyweights.

St. Joseph T. A. C. to Stage Pure Bouts

The St. Joseph T. A. Society will be in the field with another amateur boxing show on the evening of January 28. There will be tussles at 108, 115, 125 and 135 pounds. Entries close next Thursday with John W. Manning, No. 95 Cambridge street.

MacDonald's Boxers Ready for Action

Jim MacDonald has a flock of perfectly healthy box fighters who are seeking opportunities to fatten their casualty lists. George Robinson is prepared to wallop Johnny Wilson or Jack (Twin) Sullivan while Sailor Eddie Trembley is seeking action with Pal Reid or any other middleweight. Neddo Flanagan is also prepared to go forth to battle with any of the local warriors.

Robinson has tired of waiting to hear from Mike O'Dowd. MacDonald is of the opinion that O'Dowd is the king pin of the artful dodgers.

Fighting Is Less Brutal Than Football, Says Miss Morgan

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 21.—"Prize fighting is all right. It has been brought into disrepute only through the actions of roughnecks' who have attended contests and have not been properly suppressed," Anne Morgan of New York told a reporter here. She said she was not going to promote any fights in Pittsburgh, but was here to tell the Twentieth Century Club about relief work in France. She got more space with her views on prize fights than she did on her relief work talk.

"A prize fight, properly conducted, is not as brutal nor as shocking as an ordinary game of football," she said. "It is not the sport that is wrong, but the manner in which many of the contests are conducted. The Leonard-Mitchell fight was properly conducted and nothing transpired that could be construed by fair-minded persons as being shocking to the most sensitive."

ON AGAIN, OFF AGAIN, BOUT ON ONCE MORE

Rickard Emphatically States Big Dempsey-Carpentier Affair Is Sure to Occur

By T. HOWARD KELLY

New York, Jan. 21.—Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, denies emphatically that the Dempsey-Carpentier match has been cancelled.

The original contract requires that $300,000 be paid to Dempsey, win or lose, and that $200,000 be handed over to Carpentier on the same terms. Tex realizes that he cannot raise such a heavy purse with the best seats in the Garden going at only $15. He has hoped all along that as the contract was signed before the new price rule went into effect that the bout would be allowed to go on under the old scale of prices. However, no [illegible] has been [illegible] from any official source in this regard.

Scanning Horizon for Place to Hold Bout

As a consequence Rickard and his associates, William A. Brady and Cochrane are scanning world maps in the hope of finding a strategic point where the bout can be held with the same financial results as it would have netted in New York under the old price regime.

"Of course, I could stage it in England or any part of this continent and be sure of drawing the necessary crowd, but I believe that this city is entitled to the championship scrap, inasmuch as it is the greatest city in the world," declares Tex.

Stockholm, Sweden, has also made a bid for the Dempsey-Carpentier scuffle. Promoters of that city suggest that the open air stadium which was the scene of the 1912 Olympic Games be used. They claim that 40,000 persons could easily be accomodated and that interest in this fight runs high in that country.

Tex Fails to Appreciate Critics' Viewpoint

Rickard, while declaring himself on the Dempsey-Carpentier bout, also had quite a number of things to say about the criticisms that are being made against the commercialization of the glove game by fighters and promoters.

He said that if the New York Yankees could pay $150,000 for Babe Ruth and the Giants could offer $200,000 for Rogers Hornsby of St. Louis and not be subject to scathing criticism, he didn't see why a world's champion couldn't get $100,000 for his work.

The Dempsey-Carpentier fight is on, says Tex, and it will be staged on the terms of the original agreement unless the fighters and promoters agree to a new contract.

THE story did not tell her all, for it was the account of what seemed to be the last day of Harry's trial. But what the paper did not tell, the previous installments of this murder serial, Jennie's mind easily supplied. Joseph Graves and John Pearson, those witnesses who were to have disappeared, had taken the stand and testified how Harry had killed Larry Murdock. Cross-examination by the defendant's counsel had only served to strengthen the credibility of these two witnesses. Sam Conway had taken the stand and had testified to having parted with Murdock on the fatal night after they had threshed out their differences and had become reconciled. About the murder he knew nothing at all. As for Harry, he had always liked him for his father's sake and had tried to help him; he grudgingly admitted that Harry was a bit hot-tempered and reckless—in fact, Conway's attitude was that of one who was trying to shield Harry, which was the most damaging attitude in its effect upon the jury that he could have taken. Harry's testimony had consisted chiefly of denial, unsupported by evidence, and he had been unable to explain or prove his whereabouts at the time the murder was committed. The reporter very skillfully conveyed the impression—as definite and conclusive as would have been a direct statement—that there was no doubt what the jury's verdict would be, and no doubt what would be the judge's sentence. The judge's attitude was well known; he was in favor of stamping out the thuggery, and all the gangster and gunman methods, which had crept into New York city politics; he would undoubtedly seize this chance of giving a clear warning to all evil elements by inflicting the extreme penalty.

Jennie Slowly Wilted

Jennie slowly wilted down into a denim-covered morris chair, and sat there shivering, staring. There had been dramatic episodes in her career, she had played her part successfully in many a brilliant and trying scene. But the tensest moments—and that great drama was to be enacted solely between the two persons she was, with no sensational setting and no breathless audience—just herself, all alone, huddled in a faded and worn hotel chair.

Safety was hers. Tomorrow, and all would be well. And yet, if she chose safety, Harry . . . The alternatives were now much more sharply defined than when the case had been put before her weeks ago by her father and Uncle George. Then Harry's case had not been so desperate; at least, she had repeated to herself that something would develop, that somehow the matter would straighten itself out. And at that time her case had not been so desperate, either. True, there was her brilliant career which then had been at stake—but great as that had seemed, it was not so important as her present safety.

It was a bitter fight that [illegible] fought out, in that little room, upon the stage of Jennie's soul. The issues were clear-cut. Either she went away to her certain safety and Harry went to his certain doom, or else she cleared Harry and went shamefully to prison upon the forgery charge her husband and her father-in-law had made against her and she knew she could expect no mercy from these two. There was no possible compromise—no halfway measure—no chance for bargaining. It was either definitely the one, or definitely the other.

Jennie never knew, and perhaps never will know, what was the thought or consideration that tilted her wavering, struggling soul toward what was finally its decision. Perhaps it was the unconscious remembrance of Harry's frank, loyal blue eyes that day she had paid the strange visit to him in the Tombs, when he had urged her, since she did not love him, to live out her life in her own way, and had wished her the best of luck. But whatever it was that swayed her, long before Uncle George reappeared she suddenly crumpled up in the big chair and cried with a frantic, throaty sob:

"I'm going to give myself up—I'm going to help Harry! I—I don't care what happens to me!"

CHAPTER XXXIX.

In Which Jennie's Drama Reaches an Anti-Climax

SHE kept on sobbing out her purpose while she waited for Uncle George to come. As she sobbed on, her determination became more fixed, an exaltation began to swell in her as in one who goes forth to sacrifice. And then she thought of something she might have done and that thought pricked her bubble of exaltation and made her suddenly view herself as small and shameful.

The sudden thought was that many weeks ago, when Uncle George and her father had first broached the matter of Harry's ex[illegible], she might of her own accord, while still in a high station, have gone to the district attorney's office, told the truth, exposed herself, and have established Harry's alibi. That would have been a fine thing to do—heroic and magnificent—to have given up her [illegible] position and honor in order that justice might be done a man. That had been her big chance. Yes, that would have been a splendid thing to have done! Whatever else people might then have said about her, they would at least have said that she was a woman of courage and honor—something of a heroine in a way. But now—exposed—hunted—what a pitiable figure she would seem in all the world's eyes even if she did go to Harry's rescue!

Yes, she had missed her big chance. She was going to do in a poor way what she might have done in a big way. That proved that she was not a big woman. She cried yet further as her mind dwelt upon this. But her tears were not tears of self-pity. They were tears of abasement. She felt herself so poignantly smaller than she had always considered herself to be.

"Why didn't you tell me at [illegible] Harry Edwards' trial—about what is about to happen to him?" she demanded.

"Why—why," stammered the old man, taken aback for a moment. Then he recovered himself. "For one reason, Jennie, this is the first day I have seen you since you ran away. And another is, I supposed you knew all about it from the papers—and knew just what you wanted to do in that matter."

Her sudden indignation very obviously had no case against Uncle George, so the flare of her temper died down.

"Hurry up, Jennie—just slip on that veil," Uncle George went on. "The car's waiting below and everything is all fixed for the getaway."

"There's not going to be any getaway, Uncle George. I'm going to give myself up."

"Give yourself up!" exclaimed the old man, staring at her. "Now, what in thunder are you thinking about?"

"Don't you see, Uncle George? It's because of Harry. Harry's in a much worse fix than I am." And she went on, rather breathlessly, and covered the ground her mind had covered since she had read the story in the paper he had left behind. Uncle George protested—argued—but finally, sighing deeply, he gave in.

"It's going to be just as you say, Jennie. After all, it's your own life Jerry and I have been monkeying with, and I guess you've got a right to do with it as you please. But, my God," he groaned, "after all the big things we thought we'd done, to have it all end up like this! Jerry—it will 'most kill Jerry!"

He put his hands upon her shoulders and steadily regarded her with lashless, affectionate eyes. His next words were soft and rather husky. "But after all Jennie—you're a mighty square little guy!"

"I've Been a Coward"

"No I'm not. I've been a—a coward." Her tone changed to almost breathless eagerness. "I want to go down right now—and I want to see Harry the first thing—so he won't have to worry an extra minute!"

"Not so fast, dear. We've got to tell Jerry. And if you want to see Harry first, before the grand blow-off, there's some things that have got to be fixed up. And if you're going to do this—you might as well clean up the whole business."

Uncle George picked up the telephone and spoke in succession to many numbers. If the very proper young lady at the switchboard below had had any idea of who these persons were she was getting on the wire for the kindly old uncle of the sick girl above, that proper young lady would have been seized with shivers and would have had matter for amazed conversation for a month to come.

"That's as far as I can fix it," said Uncle George, turning from the telephone. "Your father will meet us down in front of the Tombs. I guess we'd better be beating it."

And then another thing which she had long forgotten flashed upon Jennie. "Wait a minute! There's Casey!"

"Long ago, he caught me and he let me off but he made me promise that if anything ever went wrong with me, I was to let him have the arrest." Briefly she told Uncle George the circumstances.

"Casey is still a Central Office man," said Uncle George, "and is likely hanging around Headquarters at this hour. You might try for him there."

Jennie called and presently, in the crisp, polite tone which an improved police administration had established as the manner for answering a telephone call she heard a heavy voice in her ear.

"Officer Casey speaking."

"Mr. Casey, you may not recognize my voice. But you want very much to see me. Please be waiting for me in front of the Tombs in fifteen minutes."

She hung up, and presently, veiled, she was down in the closed car, the "safe" Jack at the wheel.

The Still Small Voice

No. 1—When They Were Little Girls

By NELL BRINKLEY

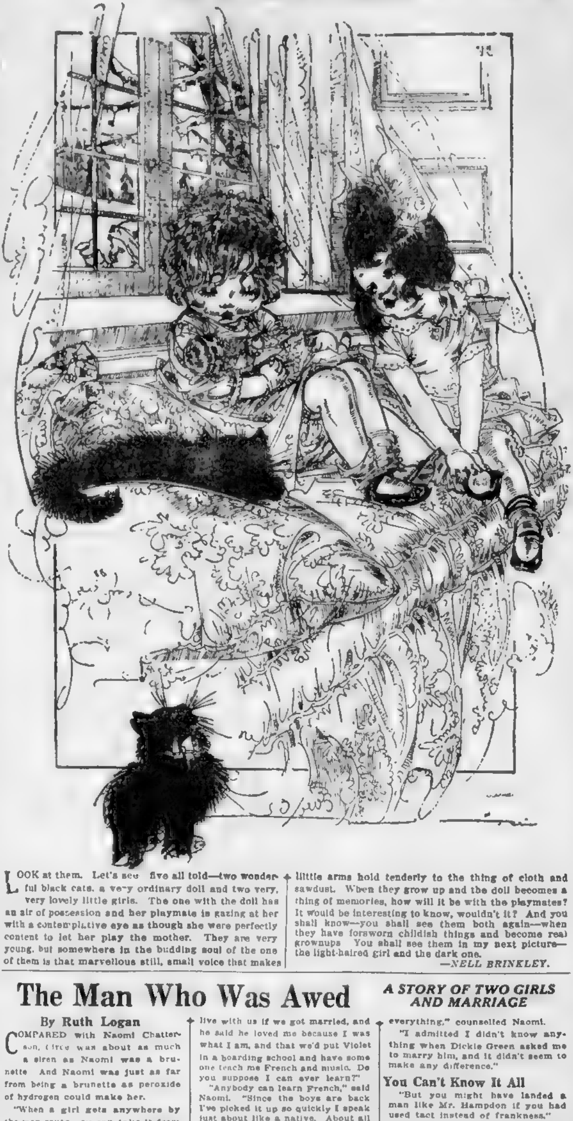
Copyright, 1921, by International Feature Service, Inc.



LOOK at them. Let's see five all told—two wonderful black cats, a very ordinary doll and two very, very lovely little girls. The one with the doll has an air of possession and her playmate is gazing at her with a contemplative eye as though she were perfectly content to let her play the mother. They are very young, but somewhere in the budding soul of the one of them is that marvelous still, small voice that makes little arms hold tenderly to the thing of cloth and sawdust. When they grow up and the doll becomes a thing of memories, how will it be with the playmates? It would be interesting to know, wouldn't it? And you shall know—you shall see them both again—when they have forsworn childish things and become real grownups. You shall see them in my next picture—the light-haired girl and the dark one.

The Man Who Was Awed

A STORY OF TWO GIRLS AND MARRIAGE

By Ruth Logan

COMPARED with Naomi Chatterson, Circe was about as much a siren as Naomi was a brunette. And Naomi was just as far from being a brunette as peroxide of hydrogen could make her.

"When a girl gets anywhere by the man route you can take it from me it's because she's got golden hair," Naomi announced to her girl friend, Maude Sunderland. "Why don't you have yours done, dearie?"

"Because I don't," replied Maude.

"It would go great with your eyes."

"Some folks think black hair doesn't go so bad," said Maude with some asperity.

"Meaning Dickie Green, huh! Well, if that's your ambition, all I've got to say is silence."

"He's a pretty nice fellow, Naomi. Lots of money. I thought for a while you were after him."

"Maybe I was, but that was before I met Mr. Hampdon. When I saw that house of his I decided that Naomi was just cut out for him. You ought to see me some time when I've got my airs on. Maudie, would you believe it, I can talk that up-stage lingo like a native born. There's the telephone now. It's him. Just listen while I do a high-brow turn."

A moment later Naomi, having chatted with Mr. Hampdon, returned to the bench before her dressing table and looked into her friend's face by means of the mirror. "Some class to me, eh?" What do you suppose he wanted to know?"

"From the way you purred, I thought maybe he wanted to know if you could understudy a kitten."

A Little Catty

"Why should I be jealous? I dropped in to tell you that Dickie wants me to marry him. I'm about the happiest girl in this city. Oh, Naomi, he's wonderful! I told him all about how I went to night school while I was working during the day and about Violet having to live with us if we got married, and he said he loved me because I was what I am, and that we'd put Violet in a boarding school and have some one teach me French and music. Do you suppose I can ever learn?"

"Anybody can learn French," said Naomi. "Since the boys are back I've picked it up so quickly I speak just about like a native. About all they ever say is June Filley or Toot-sweet or Garsong, and all you need to say is 'Oh, I see you paily voo Francay.' And then they think they aren't so smart after all."

"Perhaps I can learn it then. Dickie speaks it so beautifully. But about the music, Naomi. Of course, you're a natural musician and play anything you hear, but do you suppose I'm too old to learn? I used to play a little before mother died and I had Violet to look out for. I sold the piano to keep us going until I got a course in shorthand and typewriting."

"Well, I don't like to discourage you, dear, but you're pretty old to begin. Anyway, good musicians are born, not made. Mr. Green wouldn't agree with me, because he's a made violinist, but it's true nevertheless. It was my music that made such a hit with Mr. Hampdon. He can just sit hour after hour and listen to me."

"You're a mighty talented girl," agreed Maude earnestly.

"You ought to study so you would really know the best music. Not that you don't play beautifully. But what I mean is—know all about Chopin and Beethoven and composers like that."

"All I need to do is hear them once and I can play them better than the bird that wrote them."

"But how do you know what you're hearing when you hear it unless you've studied?"

"Leave it to me. I've got a tongue, haven't I? I can say real innocent-like, "Do tell me what that beautiful thing is. I've played it a dozen times and for the life of me I can't think who the composer is."

"You're clever," sighed Maude. "I'd be just silly enough to say I didn't know the first thing about classical music and make a fool of myself."

"Never admit you don't know everything," counselled Naomi.

"I admitted I didn't know anything when Dickie Green asked me to marry him, and it didn't seem to make any difference."

You Can't Know It All

"But you might have landed a man like Mr. Hampdon if you had used tact instead of frankness."

"Then I'm glad I didn't," came the hot retort. "I know you're clever and bright and entertaining, but I don't think David Hampdon is a marrying man."

"At any rate, I have an engagement to meet some mighty swell friends of his tonight."

"I hope I'm mistaken. I must be going now. But, by the way, you haven't told me what it was he wanted when he called up."

Naomi turned a glowing face to Maude. "Last night I played something for him and he thought it was beautiful. I happened to know what it was, because Dickie Green told me once. One thing about me is that I've got a good memory."

"What was it, Naomi?"

"Balzac's Moonlight Sonata," came the triumphant answer.

Maude gasped. "Oh, Naomi, you mean Beethoven's Sonata. It's Dickie's favorite."

Naomi turned red and then white. "Nobody can know everything," she said at last; "but anyhow he knows I can talk French. I guess he doesn't know the difference about the piece, though, because when I told him, he answered sort of awed-like, 'Mon dieu! That's the best I ever heard,' and right away I said, 'Mercy beaucoo.'"

Then She Believed

"Tell me, Jamie, what was the most wonderful thing you saw while at sea?"

"I think the strangest thing I saw was the flying fish."

"Noo, laddie, dinna mak' a fule o' yer mither. Wha ever heard o' a fish fleein'?"

"Another strange thing I saw when crossing the Red Sea. We dropped anchor, and when we raised it again there was one of the wheels of Pharoah's chariot on it."

"I DO not say that you should not have opposed the marriage—then. Marriage is not to be lightly entered into. From the moment you went to see her you became responsible for her. You hurled her into the abyss, and she has come back to haunt you. You should have had her educated and cared for — she would have submitted to any plan you proposed. And if, after a sensible separation, you became satisfied as to her character and development, and your son still wished to marry her, you should have withdrawn your objections.

"As it is, and in consequence of your act, you have lost your son. He left you then, and you have no more control over him."

"Stop!" cried Eldon Parr, "for God's sake stop! I won't stand any more of this. I will not listen to criticism of my life, to strictures on my conduct from you or any other man." He reached for a book on the corner of his desk—a cheque book. "You'll want money for these people, I suppose," he added brutally. "I will give it, but it must be understood that I do not recognize any right of theirs to demand it."

For a moment Hodder did not trust himself to reply. He looked down across the desk at the financier, who was fumbling with [illegible] leaves.

"They do not demand it, Mr. Parr," he answered, gently. "And I have tried to make it plain to you that you have lost the right to give it. I expected to fail in this. I have failed."

"What do you mean?" Eldon Parr let the cheque book close.

"I mean what I said," the rector replied. "That if you would save your soul you must put an end, tomorrow, to the acquisition of money, and devote the rest of your life to an earnest and sincere attempt to make just restitution to those you have wronged. And you must ask the forgiveness of God for your sins. Until you do that, your charities are abominations in His sight. I will not trouble you any longer, except to say that I shall be ready to come to you at any time my presence may be of any help to you."

The banker did not speak. . . . With a single glance towards the library Hodder left the house, but paused for a moment outside to gaze back at it, as it loomed in the darkness against the stars.

CHAPTER XXI.

Alison Goes to Church

I.

ON the following Sunday morning early light filtered into Alison's room, and she opened her strong eyes. Presently she sprang from her bed and drew back the curtains of the windows, gazing rapturously into the crystal day. The verdure of the Park was freshened to an incredible brilliancy by the dew, a thin white veil of mist was spread over the mirror of the waters, the trees flung long shadows across the turf.

A few minutes later she was out, thrilled by the silence, drawing in deep breaths of the morning air; lingering by still lakes catching the blue of the sky—a blue that left its stain upon the soul; as the sun mounted she wandered farther, losing herself in the wilderness of the forest.

At eight o'clock, when she returned, there were signs that the city had awakened. A mounted policeman trotted past her as she crossed a gravel drive, and on the tree-flecked stretches, which lately had been empty as Eden, human figures were scattered. A child, with a sailboat that languished for lack of wind, stared at her, first with fascination and wonder in his eyes, and then smiled at her tentatively. She returned the smile with a start.

Children had stared at her, ere that before now, and for the first time in her life she asked herself what the look might mean. She had never really been fond of them she had never, indeed, been brought much in contact with them. But now, without warning, a sudden fierce yearning took possession of her; surprised and almost frightened, she stepped irresistably and looked back at the thin little figure crouched beside the water,—to discover that his widened eyes were still upon her. Her own lingered on him shyly, and thus for a moment she hung in doubt whether to flee or stay, her heart throbbing as though she were on the brink of some unknown and momentous adventure. She took a timid step.

"What's your name?" she asked.

The boy told her.

"What's yours?" he ventured, still under the charm.

"Alison."

He had never heard of that name, and said so. They deplored the lack of wind. And presently, still mystified, but gathering courage, he asked her why she blushed, at which her color deepened.

"I can't help it," she told him.

"I like it," the boy said.

MONEY can work wonders, and the dinner given by Mrs. and Miss Throckmorton was declared "wonderful." All the guests agreed on this point, although some of them smiled significantly in making their declaration.

"Simply barbaric in its gorgeousness," Reginald Haight's mother remarked to Mrs. Lawrence on the day following the affair. "I wish you had been there—for really the decorations were well worth seeing—just as a proof of how extravagant a thing of that kind may be."

Mrs. Lawrence raised her brows and shrugged her shoulders.

"If any other proof were needed of the wretched taste of the Throckmortons they supplied it last evening. They called the dinner "informal," and then spent oceans of money on it. Vulgar ostentation!"

"Oh, well, it was interesting to say the least," her friend remarked. "I cannot understand why you and Irene were not invited."

"Perhaps because we have frowned upon the Throckmorton girl's pursuit of Mortimer," Irene snapped out.

She had meant to hold her peace—but this was going a bit too far.

"Oh, that's it, is it?" Mrs. Haight rejoined. "But surely I understand that Lewis Sheldon and Miss Throckmorton were as good as engaged; though the affair has not been announced, Lewis did not deny it when I congratulated him last evening. But then," with a smile, "he had been drinking so freely that perhaps he was not strictly accountable."

"He was accountable, I do not doubt," Irene insisted. "But Mary Throckmorton is trying to conceal her engagement in order to add a few more scalps to her belt before settling down—if that is possible. She is piqued because Mortimer is not to be one of her alleged victims."

"That does not alter the fact that Sheldon had about all he could carry at dinner last night," Mrs. Haight observed. "The wines were marvelous, and, as Reggie cleverly said, you would have thought that the place was piped for champagne. Not only was it served ad lib at dinner, but, my dear, afterward it was brought to us in the drawing room."

"Disgusting!" Mrs. Lawrence sneered.

"But the men agreed that it was wonderful champagne," Mrs. Haight continued. "And such cordials! As to the flowers—they must have cost a small fortune. A huge corsage bouquet of orchids for each woman, and a pyramid of them in the middle of the table. The music was delicious—of course the best that could be procured from New York or Boston or somewhere. By the way, there was scores of gorgeous live butterflies fastened here and there on the flowers on the table and about the room. The S. P. C. A. would have thrown fits at sight of them. And the food! My dear, it was absolutely delectable! It all screamed of money."

"That is the way the nouveau rich do things," Irene remarked. "I am glad to hear the Throckmortons are leaving today."

"Yes—they are to motor through the Berkshires, they said, stopping at Lenox and Stockbridge before returning to New York."

"And Lewis Sheldon? What about him?"

"Reggie says he went back to New York this morning. He stayed on here just for that dinner."

Sheldon had left Newport before the Throckmortons had gone. He had hoped for an invitation to accompany them at least a part of the way on their automobile trip. But his hopes had been blasted by Mary's ultimatum, delivered late last night.

Ever since Sunday, when Mortimer Lawrence had taken his departure, Lewis Sheldon had, as he put it to himself, "watched his step."

He was no fool, and was aware that the night of the dance had not been a happy one for Mary Throckmorton. He also knew that he must explain to her the remarks that Irene had made in her presence.

This he had little trouble in doing. It was easy to attribute Irene's statements to jealousy.

Moreover—although this Sheldon could not know—Mary's mind was so much occupied with her unhappiness at the outcome of Mortimer's brief visit, and she was so much engrossed in preparations for the dinner she had planned as a sort of revenge on Mortimer's family and to prove that a little Westerner could out-do Eastern snobs—that she had given scant thought to Lewis Sheldon.

Although she was not regarded as one of the elite by the members of the smart set, most of her invitations to her "little dinner" were accepted.

It had involved much telegraphing to New York, much writing of notes and the exchange of sundry telegrams between Nelsonville and Newport.

"Send the bills to me," had been the purport of the last of these telegrams.

The thought of the size of the bills had caused Rufus Throckmorton's daughter to hold her breath for an instant after receiving this message. Then she had tossed her head. She was determined to "show" these people, and she would "show" them.

And show them she did with such a vengeance that when the evening was ended she suspected that she was the most talked-of-young woman in the Summer colony.

A footstep sounded in the doorway, then in the room, and, turning, Mary saw Lewis Sheldon approaching.

The Adventures of Ann

By Hal Coffman

CHAPTER LXVII.

ANN could hear the throb of the engine of the big ship as it slowly got under way. The blowing of whistles, the clang of bells and the noise of the harbor that she had often heard from the offices of Montgomery & Co. were sounding all about her now. And she was utterly helpless to free herself.

The dull Spanish maid sat in Ann's stateroom, watching her closely as she paced up and down, trying her utmost to think of some escape out of her difficulty. The sailors and officers hurrying along the deck paid no attention to her outcries. Even if they had heard them, they were too busy getting the big ship out of the harbor and into the open sea to pay any attention. When Ann became too noisy in her calls for assistance the powerful Spanish woman took her in her strong arms and held a handkerchief over her mouth until she quieted down.

The wife of the man of the bristling beard occupied the stateroom adjoining the one in which Ann was held prisoner. She came in and sat down on the edge of the bed on which Ann was lying. Patting and stroking Ann's face tenderly, she told her how sorry she was that all this trouble had happened, but there was no alternative but to do as they were now doing. She spoke of their wonderful home in South America, where Ann was to be their guest until after the revolution. Her salary that she was missing with Montgomery & Co. would be made up to her, and she would receive every courtesy and consideration if she would do her part and make no further trouble. As she talked Ann noticed a pencil that had rolled on to the floor under the table, upon which was some writing paper.

Editor Boston American

Dear Sir—She was big, red-faced and blue-eyed. The little girl with her in the South Station was one of those white-faced, brown-eyed children that always seem to be appealing to humanity for kind treatment.

When I first saw them the girl was tugging at the woman's skirts and asking for an apple or some candy from the stand. The woman gave a dime to the child who ran off to buy something at the stand. Evidently, however, the woman changed her mind, for she waddled after the kiddie, took the dime away from her and bought two apples.

One she slipped into her handbag and the other she ate herself.

That's the stingiest thing I have seen or want to see in Boston.

Rules Governing Movie Player Identity Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Moving Picture Players' Identification Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to their readers who submit the largest percentage of correct identifications to the 120 pictures to be published in these two newspapers.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and their families, and all moving picture players and persons connected with the moving picture industry are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 120 pictures of favorite moving picture players, to be printed two each day, in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture Sunday, December 19, 1920.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which shall be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this Test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE identification to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award, and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every identification must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser or on a page of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each identification blank.

Do not send your identification in "list" form, i. e., do not write identifications under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct identifications, awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest percentage of correct identifications.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy in spelling, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their identifications before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your identifications from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first identifications sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All identifications must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Test Headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing identifications must be legibly addressed as follows: "Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 238," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all identifications will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully prepaid at postal letter rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first class matter. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of identifications on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered, as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such reply, or they may phone Main 5180, or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the test, and the decision of the Boston American Movie Test Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions now made or to be made.

PRESIDENT ASKS ALLIES' STAND ON ARMENIA

Official View That Powers Are Side-Stepping Settlement of Problem

Washington, Jan. 2.—President Wilson has dispatched a note to the allied nations designed to draw a statement of their position with regard to their request to fix the boundaries of Armenia.

It was indicated in official circles that the President, in his communication, taxes the allies with indifference to the fate of Armenia. He is understood to have called to their attention that they have not shown the co-operation they promised when he accepted the task.

Officials here believe if the President uncovers in the allies' reply that they are unwilling to assist him he will counter with a plan of his own, one that might be carried out by the new administration.

When the allies asked President Wilson to fix the Armenian frontier they agreed thoroughly to co-operate. With this assurance the President proceeded by appointing Henry Morgenthau as his representative. He then asked the allies to suggest how the subject should be approached.

No suggestions from the allies have been received in response to this request practically for instructions, except one from Lloyd George that the President might discuss the matter with the allied commissioners at Constantinople. This method was not regarded by the government as conducive to results.

The President's earnest and sincere desire to aid Armenia appears to have been sacrificed to the policy of Great Britain, France and Italy in Asia Minor. These powers gave Armenia no assistance when attacked by Turkey, which is one of the powers which has absorbed Armenia under the guise of giving her an independent government.

The best opinion is that the President already has indicated to the allies that if they fail him he will take up the boundary question with Turkey.

Most officials here think the allies have attempted to sidestep after asking the United States to fix the boundaries of Armenia. By their policy they have indicated a willingness to leave Armenia to the mercy of the National Tukish party, it is felt.

JOHN CHARLES THOMAS DRAWS BIG AUDIENCE

By F. J. McISAAC.

John Charles Thomas, the light opera baritone, drew a large audience to Jordan Hall yesterday afternoon when he gave a recital of more serious music that he has a chance to perform on the stage.

To me Thomas was a bit disappointing. I have always admired his voice, and regretted that operetta did not give him an opportunity to display it at its full. He sang a long program yesterday, largely composed of polite songs, and including a group of ditties for children. He sang easily and agreeably, getting really beautiful effects of shading and displaying a management of his voice that was remarkable.

But whenever he approached a high note he kept his tones as well covered as a bald-headed man in a nightcap, and one longed for the open thrilling top notes of the Italian baritone with half the vocal equipment of John Charles.

Like many concert artists, his program was not well chosen, too many worthless songs and not enough virile and passionate numbers.

HARVARD'S WORKSHOP PLAYERS GOING WEST

The forty-seven Workshop players, composed of Harvard and Radcliffe students, will "barnstorm" the Middle West for one week, according to announcement made by G. P. Baker, professor of dramatic literature, who is in charge of the course. Utica, Buffalo, Cleveland and New York City are among the cities to be visited. The trip will take place the week of April 18-25. This is the first time in the history of the Forty-seven Workshop that public appearances have been authorized. Four one-act plays were now being considered for production. All are members of the class.

RENT INCREASE CLASSED AS INCOME

Deductions May Be Allowed for Improvements in Filing Tax Return

Increased rentals added largely to the profits of the landlords last year, every dollar of which must be included in the taxpayer's return of income. Gross income includes all amounts received as rents. Both landlord and tenant are allowed certain deductions.

Where property is held for renting purposes, the owner may deduct the cost of securing tenants, such as advertising and the maintenance expenses, such as light, fuel, gas, janitor service, insurance and ordinary repairs. A tenant may deduct the rent paid for business premises, but not for his home, which is a personal or living expense.

DEDUCT IMPROVEMENTS.

Interest and taxes paid by the tenant on behalf of the landlord are deductible by the tenant as additional rental, provided the property is business property. Such items represent income to the landlord and must be included in his return of gross income, but are deductible by him also.

Frequently a tenant agrees to erect a building or make other permanent improvements for the benefit of the landlord. The cost of such improvement is a capital expenditure, and in order to return to the tenant his investment of capital an annual deduction may be made from gross income of such improvements divided by the number of years of the term of the lease, and such deduction shall be in lieu of a deduction for depreciation.

Under the head of depreciation owners are allowed a "reasonable amount for exhaustion, wear and tear of property used in trade or business, including a reasonable allowance for obsolescence."

MAY CLAIM DEPRECIATION.

This deduction must be made as a separate item on the return, and must be explained by showing separately each class of property, its cost or fair market value of March 1, 1913, if acquired prior thereto, value at the date of acquisition if acquired by gift, devise or descent, estimated life, depreciation charged for the year 1920 and total depreciation charged for all taxable years.

As the rate at which depreciation may be claimed is dependent upon local conditions, the use to which the property is put and its probable lifetime under normal conditions, no specific rate is established by the law and regulations.

While each taxpayer must compute the probable lifetime of his property without regard to the following figures, it has been estimated that the probable lifetime of a frame building is twenty-five years, a brick building thirty-five years, a stone, steel or concrete building fifty to 100 years.

DEDUCTIONS LIMITED.

To compute the proper amount of depreciation the taxpayer should determine the probable lifetime of the property, then divide the fair market value as of March 1, 1913, or the cost if acquired subsequent thereto, by the number of years so determined.

This will give the annual depreciation allowable. For example, a frame building, the probable lifetime of which is twenty-five years, cost $4,000. Divide 4,000 by 25 and claim $120 each year as depreciation.

Deductions for depreciation are limited strictly to business property, which includes not only buildings but machinery, automobiles, farm tractors, mine and mill equipment, office furniture, instruments used by professional men, and books.

PLEDGE $1,200 FOR HOOVER AT BRADFORD ACADEMY

Haverhill, Jan. 21.—Pledges to the amount of $1,200 were made by the students of Bradford Academy, the oldest school for young women in the country, to the Hoover Fund for the relief of the starving children of Europe, at a "Hoover Banquet" held in the academy dining hall. The typical menu of a single plate of beef stew, cocoa and bread was served. A high chair in front of which blazed a lighted candle occupied the place of honor at the head of the table. The students appeared in evening dress in honor of the "invisible" guest.

BE YOUR OWN MILLINER, URGES MISS MAGUIRE

Any woman can be her own milliner and wear the smartest hats of the day, according to Miss Anna Maguire, instructor in practical arts for the State Vocational Department, who gave a talk at the Clothing Information Bureau maintained by the Women's City Club at No. 3 Hamilton place. She told how the women of every town in the State might have the benefit of skilled instruction under State auspices, provided they would organize a group of at least twenty and apply to the State Vocational Department, State House, for an instructor.

WORCESTER POST TO HOLD "GIRL" CONTEST

Worcester, Jan. 21.—A contest for the most popular girl in Worcester, with a prize of a diamond ring as the winner's reward, will be one of the chief features of the big bazaar planned by the members of Worcester Post, No. 5, American Legion. The proceeds of the affair, which will be held in the Worcester Casino, are to go to the post treasury and for providing the new quarters of the organization, at No. 13 Waldo street. The program has not as yet been completed, but will include a vaudeville show every evening and dancing. Twenty booths will be constructed in the hall.

17 CASES OF CATSUP SEIZED UNDER FOOD LAW

Harding's Successor in Senate Arrives

Senator Willis was elected to succeed Mr. Harding in the Senate. He was formerly Governor of Ohio, and is close to the President-elect.

Plumb Shows Frelinghuysen Bill Plan Is Absurd

Mr. Glenn E. Plumb, author of the Plumb Plan of Our Railroads and general counsel for the Railroad Brotherhoods, appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission the other day, representing the railway employes in protest against the Frelinghuysen bill, by which the railroads are seeking to circumvent the President's veto extending the time which by law the railroads are permitted to do business with companies or persons with which or with whom the railroad officials have a business connection, termed by the law, "A substantial interest."

The Frelinghuysen bill provides that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall decide in advance of each proposed transaction whether or not it is a substantial interest involved. Mr. Plumb pointed out that the definition of substantial interest would vary with the character of those upon whom the interest operated. A railroad official with a high sense of honor would require a very much more substantial interest to influence his judgment and conduct contrary to the interest of the railroad and the public than the official whose sense of duty was less keen. The law is meant to prevent men from doing business when their interests are liable to affect them contrary to the course of their duty. So a man without much honor would easily find a very little interest affecting his conduct, and whatever interest affected his conduct would be a substantial interest within the intent of the law.

As Mr. Plumb well said, to make the Interstate Commerce Commission the judges of what constitutes a substantial interest between the parties to a given transaction is to require them to try the characters of the parties in each case. The requirement needs only to be stated to show its absurdity.

An Infant Industry Which Is Entitled to Protection

The yearly import of olive oil, chiefly from Italy, France and Spain, is about one-twelfth of a gallon per capita.

Olive oil is a food that grows in popularity with use. We could eat four times as much of it as we do and be better off.

We used to import all our olive oil. Then we discovered that olives could be grown successfully in our own Southwest. Today more than 40,000 acres in California and Arizona are planted in olive orchards, an investment of $20,000,000, which employs 8,800 people, and gives a yearly yield of 16,000 tons of oil and preserved fruits.

There is room in those States for 500,000 acres of olives, which would employ 80,000 people and yield a production worth $250,000,000 annually. But before this room will be filled there must first be a decision as to whether we want this home industry developed or shot to pieces by foreign competition.

It costs $4 a day to hire a worker in this native industry, whereas the pay in Italy is 58 cents and in France not much more. Moreover, both freight rates and foreign exchange are against the California olive business. The foreigner can dump oil into New York at from 51 to 81 per cent. below the cost of California oil.

Those who believe in upbuilding American industry on the basis of American standards of living will sympathize with the delegation of California and Arizona olive interests, which is asking the Congress for reasonable protection in the new tariff.

Experience shows that the retail price is not affected by the tariff. However cheap the foreign oil to the importer, it rises at retail to what the market will pay.

American Workers Waking Up to Truth About Russia

The International Association of American Machinists have passed a resolution favoring the opening of trade with Russia.

Work is dull now with this body of American skilled workmen, and they properly turn to Russia, where 200,000,000 of white people, occupying a sixth of the earth's surface and possessing the greatest natural resources in the world, need everything that American workmen can produce. Russia can keep all our workmen employed indefinitely.

This is only one of a great number of similar resolutions which are being passed by the different branches of our American labor organizations.

We are glad that at last American labor is beginning to show a glimmering of common sense and intelligence. For two years they allowed false leaders to drag them around in the hue and cry against "Reds" and against the Russian people, and permitted themselves to believe that a government of workmen and peasants in Russia was just naturally so much worse than any other kind of government, that the awful stories of butchery and treachery and thievery which were spread through the world were believable.

Now the truth is coming out, as the workman finds himself out of work and with more time to investigate and to use his own brains in thinking about the stories which he hears from Russia. An ordinarily intelligent man needs only to think about these slanders to know that they are slanders, and to know why the world has been so flooded with them.

Let the workmen continue their agitation for business relations with Russia. It is good work, even if it is belated.

Let's Find Out if Boston Has Any Building Conspiracy

Mr. Ralph Adams Cram, the chairman of the City Planning Board of Boston, says that there ought to be an investigation of building conditions in this community. There is no direct evidence in his possession, he tells us, which indicates that conditions here are like those revealed in New York by the Lockwood investigation. But he declares that he has a strong suspicion that conditions are similar below the surface because they are similar above the surface.

The Chamber of Commerce is making some investigation of the sort by a special committee, and we have no doubt that the investigation will be ably conducted. But, nevertheless, it is unofficial and has no power to summon witnesses and papers, administer oaths and punish for perjury.

So we suggest that District Attorney Pelletier and District Attorney Tufts of Suffolk and Middlesex counties might well make this investigation themselves before the Grand Jury. The Grand Jury does not necessarily have to indict. It is an inquisitorial body and can report its findings of fact and recommendations in matters of public interest, and its sessions do not have to be secret.

If there is a conspiracy here to keep up the cost of construction in the face of our great need for more houses we ought to know it as quickly as possible and to devise whatever remedy we can.

More Truth Than Poetry

Logical Complacency

England is building warships steadily so that her navy may be kept twice as strong as ours. It is proposed by the present American government that Great Britain shall be permitted to postpone for twenty years the payment of $250,000,000 interest annually on the money she has borrowed from us.—News Item.

By S. E. KISER

EVERY little river pays its tribute to the sea;
Every little blossom lures some eager honey bee;
Every honest effort helps to make the toiler strong;
England keeps on adding to her navy right along.

EVERY drifting atom helps to make the mighty whole;
Every deed of kindness brings contentment to the soul;
Every time we borrow there is interest to pay;
England keeps on adding to her navy day by day.

EVERY fragrant petal helps to beautify the scene;
Every penny hoarded helps to make the miser mean;
Every splendid sunrise helps to make the world sublime;
England keeps on adding to her navy all the time.

EVERY time it's mentioned that the interest is due
Europe asks a favor that we graciously renew;
It would not be friendly to insist that they must pay;
England keeps on adding to her navy every day.

EVERY other nation still considers Number One;
We keep right on talking, but get very little done;
Every day they tell us we should sing a peaceful song;
England keeps on adding to her navy right along.

Letters to the Editor

Got Only $2,000 for Legs

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—I was greatly interested in a few articles of the Boston American last week (those referring to amputation cases). You may or may not be interested, but one of those cases, that of the boy, struck a humorous note in me. His doctor made a remark that the boy would have to rest several years.

Allow me to show a difference. On April 1, 1918, I was robbed of both my lower limbs. You think the term, robbed, is out of place? Well, perhaps, but the accident was caused by a car that was turned in for repairs on air brakes and had been taken out before it had been looked at. I am getting too far from the story. In twenty-eight days I left the hospital, and in less than a year I was compelled to work eighteen hours a day on artificial limbs because the compensation received would not meet the needs of my household. In fact, I received less than $2,000. I am not trying to use the paper as an agitator, only wondered if these cases such as mine were ever aired by the Good Samaritan, the Industrial Accident Board.

Thank you for your kind attention. Respectfully,

Attleboro. E. M. G.

Opposes Smith-Towner Bill

Editor Boston American:

Dear Sir—When one considers that the enactment of the Smith-Towner bill will add millions of dollars to our country's already staggering financial burdens for an unnecessary and useless national department, it seems advisable that our law-makers in Washington should consider this side of the bill before passing judgment on it.

However, if our Congressmen are willing to spend so vast a sum of money at this time, why not appropriate it for a much more deserving cause? Why not help the crippled and disabled veterans of the world war, as well as the surviving dependents of our brave boys who made the "supreme sacrifice"? Crying poverty to these just appeals for financial assistance and not mentioning the tremendous amount of money that will be required annually to carry on the work outlined by the Smith-Towner bill is very inconsistent, to say the least.

WILLIAM THOMAS.

IT WAS windy
AND SHARP.
AND SUN-SHINY.
AND INVIGORATING.
AND I was walking.
AND SWINGING along.
AND BREATHING deeply.
AND AHEAD of me.
WAS ANOTHER man.
AND AROUND a corner.
CAME A gust of wind.
AND TOOK his hat.
AND I grabbed at it.
AS IT went by me.
AND DIDN'T get it.
AND I turned around.
AND THE hat stopped.
AND I ran.
AND JUST at the moment.
I REACHED my hand.
TO PICK it up.
IT STARTED again.
AND I hesitated.
AND THEN ran on.
AND BY that time.
IT HAD floated out.
TO THE middle of the street.
AND I dodged an auto.
AND KEPT on chasing.
AND ONCE again.
THE WARM flush.
OF IMPENDING victory.
FLOWED OVER me.
AND ONCE again.
THE WIND came.
AND GRABBED the hat.
AND TOGETHER.
THEY BOTH beat it.
ACROSS THE street.
AND HAVING started.
I COULDN'T quit.
AND I ran on.
AND FINALLY.
I CORNERED the hat.
IN AN areaway.
OF A brown stone front.
AND STARTED back.
AND THE guy that lost it.
HADN'T MOVED an inch.
HE JUST waited.
TILL I brought it back.
AND I ask you.
WHY IS it.
WHEN MEN lose hats.
THEY ALWAYS stand still.
WHILE OTHERS chase them.
YOU CAN search me.
I DON'T know.

PHILOSOPHY INDUCED BY UPPER BERTH

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1921, by the Star Company.

STRETCHED out on one of the top shelves of a Pullman the other night, listening to the ka-chunk of the wheels hitting the rail joints, I got to thinking of the importance of men.

The Pullman was part of the Twentieth Century, and the famous fast train, roaring through the night, was packed with citizens of affairs. Some of them are nationally famous. Many of them are rich.

Beneath me, in a lower berth, a man worth many millions of dollars snored as vigorously as a tired hodcarrier. In his own empire of business other men bow to him as to a king.

In an adjoining berth reposed a man said to hold the political destiny of a great State in the hollow of his hand. Most of them aboard the train are accounted important in the affairs of their respective communities, some of them in the affairs of the country at large.

But I got to thinking that for this night at least they were in importance as pygmies to giants when compared to a track walker wending his way through the cold night outside. They were as nothing when compared to the importance of the engineer at the throttle in the engine up ahead or to the dispatchers who were seeing that this great train got the right of way in proper order.

Putting the wealth of all the passengers on the train together, with the additional wealth they might command through their affiliations, and you would probably be able to build and equip a couple of railroad systems, but what good all their wealth without that every second of vigilance on the part of the men handling the train?

How important would be the most important man in the world, were he a passenger in the train, a few days after a moment of forgetfulness, or a moment of dozing on the part of the track walker, the engineer, the dispatcher, or the scores of other employes whose business it is to see that this train gets through all right?

My millionaire friend, sonorously stating his somnolence beneath me, has a daily income greater than the monthly salaries of all the train employes lumped together, but how consequential was he this night against the man who inspected the car wheels before the train started to see that everything was O. K.?

Or how consequential the position in life of any man aboard the train against the jobs of the men who built the train equipment, and put honesty into every inch of their production? A bit of carelessness or skimping on their part, and of what avail then the heights of the loftiest passenger?

It might be argued that the engineer and the other employes aboard the train have their own lives to look after, and so may be expected to exercise extreme diligence and care. But behind the scenes in everyday life are men on whom we are more or less dependent for our safety and who are accountable only to their own conscience.

Out in the deserts of Utah or Nevada you have seen crews of ragged, dirty-looking Mexican section hands and have gazed at them without interest. Yet your life has just depended upon the strict attention to duty of these men.

You go into a restaurant and order food. Very often only the diligence and honesty of a poorly-paid cook stand between you and ptomaine poisoning. You never see him and he never sees you, but you are practically putting your life in his hands, and his honesty and sense of duty protect you.

In a barber shop you bare your throat to a razor in the hands of a barber who is a total stranger to you and of whose skill you are entirely ignorant. A slip on his part might inflict a wicked wound upon you; carelessness on his part in attention to his tonsorial equipment might transmit to you a severe skin disease.

Thus every day and every hour we are entrusting our well-being to others, and when you come to think of it, as I thought of it on the top shelf of that Pullman, there is rarely a time when our own importance is not dwarfed by the importance of some one else.

IMPORTED PLANTS OF FINANCIAL VALUE

By Spectator

AMERICA is not only a melting pot for all kinds of races of men but also for other creatures.

Plants and insects, for example.

For a considerable portion of our crops is from strange seeds from abroad, and by far the greater part of our insect pests are the "genuine imported" article.

Durum wheat, introduced in 1899 from Russia, now produces a crop worth fifty million dollars annually.

Egyptian cotton, brought hither by government scientists in 1901, added twenty million dollars to our wealth in 1919, and has become the basis of the long-staple cotton industry of the Southwest.

Alfalfa came originally from Central Asia, in about 1854, and is now the mainstay of the West.

Japanese rice is the foundation of the great rice industry of Louisiana and Texas, and was first secured in 1899.

From Brazil in 1872 came the Washington navel orange, which is now the bulk of the California orange crop, and is worth around sixteen million dollars a year.

Sedan grass is worth to us some ten million dollars a year; it came over from Egypt in 1909.

In 1906 feterita was brought hither from the same country, and in 1918 produced a crop valued at ten million dollars.

Blue grass, white clover, red top, timothy and many other grasses are immigrants from Europe. Their value is enormous.

On the other hand, Bermuda grass comes from India, carpet grass from West Indies, Dallas grass from Argentina and lespedeza from Asia, and these are important in the South.

In California the pasture lands are covered with species from the Mediterranean region, such as alfilaria, bur clover, wild oats, wild barley and the like.

It would seem to be about as hard to find a native American plant as it is to find a native American man.

Still we can point with pride to such aboriginals as the tomato, the potato, corn and tobacco.

The bad come with the good, however, and as we get anarchists and bomb throwers along with sturdy laborers among our immigrants, so along with our useful plants we get a dangerous lot of insects which are the bane of plant life.

The insect destruction of orchards, gardens and farm crops is estimated at $500,000,000 a year, or more than a million dollars a day.

Very few of the pernicious insects that attack cultivated crops are native to the United States.

Many of these pests come from Europe and some from Asia.

From China about forty-five years ago came the San Jose scale. There is hardly a commercial orchard of deciduous trees anywhere in the country that does not have to be sprayed once a year to control the pest. This insect alone undoubtedly has cost this country upward of $100,000,000.

The original peach moth, which gained entry in 1912 with imported Oriental cherry trees from Japan, has just begun its spread and depredations. It affects practically all deciduous fruits and bids fair to be as destructive as the well-known coddling moth, the cause of wormy apples.

The Japanese beetle, brought in about the same time as the peach moth, has already gained such firm foothold that, in view of its habits and prolonged flight, it is probably incapable of extermination and may ultimately overspread the United States. Another foreign pest in comparatively recent years is the European corn borer.

Mexico has contributed its share of insect pests that are now established in this country. Chief among these are the boll weevil, the pink bollworm and the little Mexican beetle known as the bean ladybird.

From all of which it appears that we are intimately bound up with the other nations of the earth. No Chinese Wall or protective tariff or Monroe Doctrine can keep us from the banes and blessings of our common humanity. We are a slice of the world.
